Rubin Leads 'Happening' in HUB Students Test Old Main, But Fuller Says 'All Night'

Rubin Relaxes

PRIOR TO HIS SPEECH before 2,000 University students last night, Jerry Rubin, leader of the Youth International Party (Yippy), relaxes amidst the crowd. On stage, Rubin used a plethora of four and 12 letter words to spice his speech.

By LARRY REIBSTEIN
Collegian Staff Writer

More than 2,000 students packed the Hetzel Union Building Ballroom last night to hear the Viet Cong flag-shrouded Jerry Rubin. Rubin, leader of the Youth International Party, attacked everything from the stock exchange to the nation's police.

His audience sat on the ballroom floor and stage, overflowing into the HUB lobby, where the speech was heard over a public address system.

Most of the students stayed after the 11 p.m. closing time. Spokesmen for the Students for a Democratic Society, which sponsored Rubin's speech, said the students were trying to force the Administration to keep the HUB open.

Semi-sit-in

But the HUB management dampened the semi-sit-in by stating that the building could remain open all night, if necessary.

When Rubin's speech ended shortly after 11:30, Jeff Berger, SDS member, told the audience that a discussion period would follow after a short break.

Most of the students left the building, however, and when a band stopped playing at around 12:30 a.m. about 500 people remained.

William P. Fuller, HUB manager, said the Administration would not force the students to leave.

"We'll let them stay," Fuller told The Daily Collegian. "It's okay. We've done it many times before. We just close the rest of the building and let them use the ballroom."

As of 2:30 p.m. the students were still in the HUB. They were holding a "rap-in," or discussion.

Smoking Pot

During Rubin's speech and after he left at about 11:30, several students reported that marijuana was being passed and smoked in the audience.

The Munchkins, a rock group, entertained the audience starting about 8 p.m.

Rubin made his long awaited entrance during a drum solo. Entering from the rear of the ballroom, Rubin, with long curly hair, was applauded and he received a standing ovation from about 50 SDS members.

Rubin mounted the stage, where he was given a glass of water. He took a pill from his pocket and swallowed it.

"I just dropped some acid," Rubin announced before Rubin was scheduled to speak, however, a film called "The Seasons Change" was shown. The film was an account of the Chicago demonstrations during the Democratic National Convention. It depicted scenes of police beating Yippies and included interviews with politicians, newsmen and demonstrators.

After the one hour film, Martin Kenner, a member of the Columbia Strike Committee, spoke on, among other things, the demonstration which occurred at Columbia University.

Finally, Rubin was introduced by Tom Richards, chairman of SDS.

Shrouded in a red and blue cape which he said was a Viet Cong flag, Rubin rapped American society's preoccupation with money.

"This country's sick," Rubin said. "The whole thing is money, money, money. If some people ruled, like me, everything would be free. There would be enough food for everyone in the world, five times over."

Rubin related a story in which he and several of his friends journeyed to the New York Stock Exchange.

"You can't come in here," the doorman at the stock exchange said, "you're hippies and you've come to demonstrate."

'Who Us?'

"Who us?" Rubin replied.

Actually, Rubin explained, the small group had not gone to the stock exchange to demonstrate, only to see the workings of the market. Rubin, who is Jewish, said he imagined the next day's headlines would read, "Jews Barred From Stock Market."

Finally, Rubin and his friends were admitted to the building.

"When we got to the visitors gallery high above the floor, we started dropping dollar bills," Rubin continued.

"You should have seen those capitalists fighting for the money," Rubin added.

Events at the University of Wisconsin in the last week could be duplicated at this campus, Rubin said.

Wisconsin has been besieged with student demonstrations which resulted in the calling in of the National Guard.

"Radicals at Wisconsin a few months ago were disillusioned, split, unlikely. The campus is located in a small town similar to Penn State," Rubin said.

"But look at Wisconsin now. National guardsmen had to be called in. This could happen here," Rubin said.

Rubin said that present day universities have become "baby sitting agencies."

'Get Rid of Whites'

"The country had to think of a way to get rid of whites. It suddenly dawned on them — make them students. Let them go to school to keep them off the streets. They can study long hours and get degrees. Then they can get their graduate degrees and stay off the streets."

"Schools are prisons or hospitals or some kind of institution," Rubin said. "They have to find some way to control you without the cops."

Rubin said the country had the same "problem" with blacks.

"Blacks are not needed anymore — they've built houses, and picked cotton. So the country had to find something for them to do and this dawned on them. Send them to Vietnam and fight," Rubin said.

"Now we have a war where blacks are fighting the yellows for the whites," Rubin said.

Future of Nation

The future of the nation, according to Rubin, rests on the very young.

"We're turning on the youth. Once I was walking down the street and a young boy with long hair saw me. He then gave me the peace sign, two fingers upraised," Rubin said.

"The seven year old will control the country and we have them," Rubin said.

Sharp exchanges occurred during Kenner's speech on the Columbia strike between Doug Cooper, chairman of Young Americans for Freedom, Tom Richards, chairman of SDS and students in the audience.

'Failure of Liberals'

Cooper was booed often while presenting his side of the issues. He left during Rubin's speech.

In his speech, Kenner said the protest movement has changed from an "individual and moral" stance to a movement "to confront those in power."

Kenner said the demonstration in Chicago resulted from a failure of liberals to initiate any change.

"Gene McCarthy, Columbia Broadcasting System and the New York Times all proved ineffective. So the movement ended up in Chicago. It was us against them," Kenner said.

State Senators Urge Student Conduct Bill

A bill to crack down on student dissidents was introduced in the State Senate this week.

Sponsored by 30 senators, the bill would attempt to impose rules of conduct on students at public schools and at state colleges and universities.

Sen. Robert D. Fleming, Aspinwall Republican and president pro tempore of the Senate, is the prime sponsor of the bill.

The Pittsburgh Press said today that the measure was interpreted in the Senate as a direct answer to Chancellor Wesley W. Posvar of the University of Pittsburgh, who is opposed to Fleming's attempt to impose rules of conduct on students.

Fleming originally stated his position on student disorders several weeks ago after 30 students forcibly took over Pitt's computer center. They turned it back to the school only after Posvar promised that they would not be punished.

Provisions of the bill are:

"Whoever willfully disturbs, or otherwise interferes with or prevents the orderly conduct of the activities, administration or classes of any public school or any college or university — $100 fine and costs and two months in jail.

"Whoever, for the purpose of disturbing or otherwise interfering with or preventing the orderly conduct of the activities, administration or classes of any public school or any college or university, willfully annoys, disturbs, taunts, assaults or molests any student, employee, administrator, agent or any other person lawfully in a building of or on or about the grounds of, or in the immediate vicinity of such school or such college or university—$150 fine and costs and three months in jail.

"Whoever in the course of committing any of (these) acts willfully conducts himself or herself in a lewd, lascivious or vulgar manner by word or deed in a building of, or on or about the grounds of, or in the immediate vicinity of any public school or any college or university—$50 fine won't comment on these matters."

Another provision says that "every person who shall counsel, aid or abet the commission of any of these offenses shall be liable to be proceeded against as the principal offender" — and be subject to the same penalties.

The measure was referred to the Senate Judiciary Committee for study.

When asked to comment on reports that disciplinary action is being taken against members of student groups who defied Lewis' ban on Monday by selling the Water Tunnel in the Hetzel Union Building, Murphy said, "We don't comment on these matters."

Concerning the University's policy on disciplinary action against students, Lewis said, "We will not reveal our work with the individual students in matters of this kind. It's confidential."

Lewis directed that the first volume of the Water Tunnel not be sold or distributed on campus two hours after sales began on Jan. 27.

'A Rhetorical Revolution'

Confrontations Replace Protest

By SARA HERTER
Collegian Staff Writer

Franklin Haiman, head of the Department of Public Address and Group Communication at Northwestern University, said in a speech last night that protesters today have given up "the more polite forms of protest and resorted to direct confrontation."

Haiman, who is also chairman of the Illinois American Civil Liberties Union, called the new methods of dissent "a rhetorical revolution."

The rhetorical revolution is a "rejection of the concept of rational verbal discussion," he said.

Haiman explained that in the past the accepted method of protest was to gather all the facts and to present them "in a logical but conciliatory manner."

He said new forms of protest fall into three categories: civil disobedience, body rhetoric and emotional verbal discussion.

Civil disobedience is "predesigned to make change," Haiman said. He called it "a dramatic inconvenience that the system must respond to, hopefully, in the protesters' direction."

He said civil disobedience occurs at three different levels.

The first level, passive resistance, is protest "as a matter of conscience," he said. Draft resistance, class boycotts and other forms of passive resistance don't interfere with anybody else's rights.

Peaceful disruption, the second level, "does prevent others from doing their thing, but in a peaceful and non-destructive ways such as sit-ins," Haiman said.

The third level of civil disobedience is violent disruption, including "throwing typewriters out of windows and burning 10 years of a professor's research," he said.

Haiman called body rhetoric "a non-coercive and non-disruptive form of protest relying on strong feelings about an issue.

Mass demonstrations are used to dramatize the issue. "The more people you can turn out, the more persuasive the message is," he added.

He said that although under the first amendment to the Constitution, peaceful demonstrations should be protected, legal problems have arisen.

"The right to assemble peacefully must be weighed in the balance of possible countervailing interests," he said.

Haiman explained that if the demonstration is likely to create a disturbance resulting from the reaction of hostile onlookers, "the government has a right to stop it."

Verbal Discussion

Emotional verbal discussion as a form of protest "is not as new on the scene as civil disobedience or body rhetoric," he said.

However, emotionalization of issues is on the increase, Haiman added. He cited protest songs, poetry and buttons as examples.

"College students and other people whom we think are capable of rational discussion are resorting to this kind of communication. They feel what we need now is confrontation," he said.

Retirement for Hoover?

MIAMI (AP) — J. Edgar Hoover plans to retire as director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation next Jan. 1 on his 75th birthday, according to reports yesterday from a Washington meeting of state attorney general.

The Miami Herald reported in today's early editions that unnamed sources among the visiting state officials said they had been told of Hoover's impending retirement.

However, an FBI spokesman said: "Mr. Hoover has not indicated any plans to retire, and I don't think he has any intention of retiring anytime soon."

Hoover has directed the FBI since 1924.

Lewis' Office Thrashing Out 'Multitude' of Tunnel Problems

By GLENN KRANZLEY
Collegian Staff Writer

Vice President for Student Affairs Charles L. Lewis said yesterday that his office is still "in the process of working on the multitude of problems" associated with the Garfield Thomas Water Tunnel.

Neither Lewis nor Dean of Students Raymond O. Murphy would comment on any disciplinary action to be taken by their offices against Water Tunnel staff members or students who allegedly violated the University directive against selling Volume 1 No. 1 issue of the Water Tunnel.

Murphy said his letter to parents of minors on the Water Tunnel staff was incorrectly interpreted in a story in The Daily Collegian. He was referring to the statement that his office "has not yet determined the degree of association with the paper for any of the ten individuals whose name appeared there. (The Water Tunnel masthead)."

"This has the implication that although we have not yet determined the degree of association, we will do so at some time in the future," Murphy said.

"That's not exactly what my letter said, and in fact, it's just not so."

"The intent of the letter was to tell the parents, 'This is it,'" Murphy said.

LONDON (AP)—President Nixon is expected to encounter hostile demonstrations in at least three cities during his tour of five European nations starting late this month.

Warnings of trouble have come from minority groups in London, West Berlin and Paris. Nixon is also stopping off in Rome and Brussels in his weeklong swing billed as a move aimed at "strengthening and revitalizing the American-European community."

In London, a leftist spokesman said anti-Vietnam war demonstrators would give Nixon a "hot reception" when he visits Britain Feb. 24-26.

In West Berlin, a group of radical leftist students vowed to disrupt the President's visit there Feb. 27.

In Paris, the Communist-led General Confederation of Labor called on its members yesterday to take part in an "action week" for peace in Vietnam which will coincide with Nixon's visit to the French capital Feb. 28-March 2.

Paris Talks Produce 'Nothing Significant'

PARIS — A fourth round of acrimonious oratory and accusations yesterday reinforced the formidable wall dividing the two sides in the Vietnam peace talks.

Leaving the International Conference Center, U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge said he was sorry to report "nothing really significant emerged. I don't expect much to come of these public meetings."

The implication was that until there are serious, secret meetings away from the huge round table, the talks will continue to be bogged down in fruitless ritual each Thursday.

The Viet Cong National Liberation Front's official spokesman suggested that the meeting was the proper place for the United States, if it chooses, to present any proposal for prolonging a Tet-lunar new year-truce in Vietnam beginning Feb. 17.

The Viet Cong has called a seven-day truce beginning Saturday.

The spokesman was asked how his side would react to a proposal to extend the period.

"If such a suggestion is submitted to the conference, we are prepared to examine it," he said.

But he added that the NLF has not yet had official notification from Washington of acceptance of the seven-day truce and that Lodge had not mentioned it.

Allies Uncover Vietcong Supply Caches

SAIGON — Allied sweeps within the past two months have uncovered huge enemy caches, including enough rice to feed 47 battalions of 500 men each for 45 days, the U.S. Command said yesterday.

There has been a flareup of enemy activity this week and the Communist command still talks of a new offensive around Tet, the lunar new year which begins Monday.

U.S. officers feel, however, that the finding of the vast stockpiles of munitions and food have gone a long way toward disrupting enemy plans for mounting an offensive.

U.S. headquarters said most of the caches were found in two critical areas, the region around Saigon and in the 1st Corps area in the far north.

Allied ground sweeps around Saigon have touched off most of the week's fighting. The sweeps are designed to determine if any major enemy units are on the move. None has been reported spotted so far.

The U.S. Command revised upward from 115 to 131 the number of enemy troops killed in two battles Wednesday 77 miles north of Saigon and 100 miles east of the capital. U.S. casualties were 5 dead and 13 wounded.

U.S. Sailors Receive Cool Turkish Welcome

ISTANBUL — Sailors of the U.S. 6th Fleet are receiving a dubious welcome in this eastern member of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization where their presence has triggered four days of anti-American demonstrations.

The Navy men had hoped to enjoy the sights of this colorful Bosphorus port during their week-long visit. But they have been sealed off in the dock area by Turkish troops and police anxious to avoid any direct clash between the sailors and rioting students.

Civilians have been barred from the disembarkation zone where the aircraft carrier Forrestal and three destroyers lie at anchor.

Sailors given shore leave have to travel by special bus to recreation centers set up by U.S. Information Agency officials. They were not allowed to stroll about the city on their own.

In Ankara, 400 students marched to the headquarters of American military forces in Turkey and staged a demonstration against the 6th Fleet.

Pentagon Plans Non-Urban Missile Bases

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird said yesterday the Pentagon is considering basing nuclear antimissiles away from major U.S. population centers.

"This is one of the options that's being looked at... location of the Spartan missile at a further distance from the cities," Laird said in a television interview.

Positioning the Sentinel system's big nuclear-tipped interceptors far outside populated areas could help the Nixon administration resolve a public relations problem, some cities' fears of atomic arms.

Laird laid stress on what he called the safety of Sentinel warheads, asserting that over the past decade the United States has stored 15,000 warheads around the world without an accidental detonation.

Nixon To Help Build Merchant Fleet

MIAMI BEACH — President Nixon promised labor leaders yesterday to help rebuild the nation's long-declining merchant fleet into a major tool of U.S. economic policy, a pledge the Democratic-oriented unions were never able to get from former President Lyndon B. Johnson.

"A strong and viable merchant marine is essential in this quest for economic vitality," Nixon said in a telegram to Paul Hall, president of the AFL-CIO Maritime Trades Department.

"I want each of you and the seven million men and women you represent to know of my deep interest in seeing our merchant marine play a more important role in world commerce," Nixon said. The telegram was read to leaders of the labor group's 39 unions.

Racial Clash Erupts at Oliver High School

PITTSBURGH — A clash of black and white pupils triggered a wild melee yesterday that began in the Oliver High School cafeteria then spread outside the building.

Police from all parts of the city rushed to the school on the North Side before the disturbance was put down and the youngsters sent home for the day.

At least three pupils were injured, one seriously, and police said several arrests were made.

The battle was the latest in a series of clashes between black and white youngsters at the school.

A school board spokesman said a fight between a black and white boy and scuffling among blacks and whites on Wednesday led to the trouble yesterday.

"When the first lunch period began," he said, "about 350 students came down to the cafeteria, but the white and black students were sitting in groups."

Seven Persons Held on Drug Charges

JOHNSTOWN — Seven persons were under arrest yesterday following simultaneous narcotics raids in Johnstown and three neighboring towns.

Local police and state narcotics agents made the arrests in raids on homes Wednesday night in Johnstown, Franklin, Conemaugh and Ferndale.

Detectives said they found marijuana, unidentified pills and powder. The substances were sent to a laboratory in Harrisburg for analysis.

The seven arrested were charged with violation of the Drug Device and Cosmetics Act.

Constitutional Party Rejects Income Tax

HARRISBURG — The Constitutional Party said yesterday it plans to blanket the state with roadside billboards opposing Gov. Shafer's proposed income tax.

A. J. Watson, state chairman, said 100 5-by-11-foot posters have been distributed to county chairmen. The posters say: "Join the Tax Rebellion—Register and Vote Constitutional Party."

Allegheny Gets Nonstop Status To New England

WASHINGTON — The Civil Aeronautics Board authorized Allegheny Airlines yesterday to operate nonstop between Pittsburgh and two New England points, Boston and Hartford-Springfield.

The board also ruled that Allegheny no longer need make the intermediate stops on the route between Boston and Memphis and Nashville, Tenn., but may provide one-stop service by way of any of several route junction points.

Coach Paterno Calls For Lower Voting Age

HARRISBURG — Head Football Coach Joe Paterno said yesterday he believes the minimum voting age in Pennsylvania should be lowered, but had no opinion on what the legal age should be.

"We're wrong in keeping the minimum voting age at 21," Paterno said. "How far we should go, however, I haven't yet formed an opinion."

Paterno, 42, has been a member of the Penn State coaching staff since his graduation from Brown University in 1950. In his three seasons as head coach, the Nittany Lions have earned a 24-7-1 record. Last year's team was undefeated.

Youth Concerned

"My experience with young people today has been a good one," Paterno said. "The majority of them are very much concerned about good government and about their own civic responsibility."

Paterno said he has detected a "growing maturity" among young people since his college days. He said they were not only better educated but that they were more abreast on current events and issues because of such mediums as television. "Maybe by giving them the vote, they will elect public officials who would be more responsive to the needs of our society," Paterno said.

Legislation has been introduced in both the Pennsylvania House and Senate to lower the voting age to either 18 or 19.

In order to become law, however, identical bills must be passed in two legislative sessions and approved by a vote of the people.

The House State Government Committee will hold a series of public hearings on the question beginning Feb. 22 in Philadelphia.

Subsequent hearings will be held in Harrisburg Feb. 26 and in Pittsburgh March 1.

House Speaker Herbert Fineman, D-Philadelphia, has thrown the weight of his support behind a proposed state constitutional amendment to give 18-year-olds the right to vote.

Better Informed Youth

"Boys and girls of 18 are much better informed these days on public affairs and government, maybe even better than many adults," Fineman said. He flatly predicted that the proposal would pass the House.

Gov. Shafer has said he favors lowering the voting age, but believes the minimum age should be uniform throughout the country. At present, only four states have a lower age than 21. Hawaii's is 20. Alaska 19, and Georgia and Kentucky 18.

"I'm in favor of lowering the voting age," Shafer said at a news conference Jan. 16. "I haven't made a final decision whether it should be 18 or 19, but my principal interest is that we have a uniform age throughout the country."

Court Denies Motion

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Sirhan Bishara Sirhan's defenders asked for a mistrial yesterday, saying published reports that he may plead guilty in the assassination of Sen. Robert F. Kennedy might have prejudiced jurors. The motion was denied.

Before ruling on the motion, Superior Court Judge Herbert V. Walker ordered the 12 jurors and six alternates polled in his chambers to see if they read or heard the reports or were influenced.

The motion by chief defense counsel Grant B. Cooper came in place of the expected opening arguments and first testimony from witnesses in the five-week-old trial.

The first report that Sirhan might plead guilty, in hope of receiving a sentence of life imprisonment instead of the death penalty, was in the Wednesday edition of the Los Angeles Times. Accounts of the Times story later were widely published and broadcast before the jurors were sequestered—locked up—Wednesday night.

Cooper called such speculation prejudicial to the 24-year-old Jordanian charged with murder in the shooting of Kennedy last June, saying: "Any discussion in respect to plea bargaining is not admissible and should not reach the jury's ears."

Jurors were not in court for the motion. They later were called into chambers one by one.

The questioning took about an hour. A defense attorney said most jurors said they had neither read nor listened to news ac-

Capacity Crowd Anticipated As Unbeatens Meet in Rec

By WARREN PATTON
Collegian Sports Writer
Pressure is a funny thing. In sports it can be the one factor that may doom an otherwise fine team into a soul-crushing, poor performance, especially in a do-or-die contest. Where an arctic snowstorm would fail in its chilling attempt to dislodge the form in an iron cross, the mental aspect or the mere thought of defeat may force a superb effort down the sink faster than it aided by a pound dosage of Drano.

The huge mastodon of pressure will rear its ugly head at Rec Hall tomorrow in an all-out attempt to rattle some of the East's finest gymnasts. The 7,000-plus people who may swell the bleachers, plus thousands more who watch through the miracle of the tube will see the undefeated Nittany Lions of Penn State (5-0) battle the fluttering Owls (9-0) of Temple in a showdown match in Eastern Gymnastics, at 8 p.m. in Rec Hall.

Why Fluttering?
Wait a minute — why the "fluttering" Owls? They have four more wins than State and have no blemishes in their loss column. They lost only four men to graduation from last year's EIGL championship team: The U.S. Olympic team would have a tough time throwing that background into play.

Look to the deadly noun of pressure again, only this time not of the mental sort. One of Temple's best all-around men, Pete DiFurio, will be feeling the pressure of plaster on his leg, the consequences of a knee injury he suffered last week.

That throws the whole match into a new light, according to coach Gene Wettstone of Penn State.

May Hurt
"The loss of that one man decreases their margin of safety," he said. "Before where they had a number of top men fighting for the top three scores, their number is now decreased. Their top men will have to do real well to overcome his loss."

"We had to go through part of our season with injuries," the coach added. "We'll see if they can do it also."
It will be a real test for Temple, a team that had prided itself on depth in pre-season.

Don't pull out the lace handkerchiefs and the extra box of Kleenex for the North Philadelphians, however. They still have last year's top all-around performer in Fred Turoff and a powerful back-up man in Barry Weiner. Weiner will enter the match undefeated in floor exercise competition. They also have three specialists for the side horse in Harry Saffren, Rick Wagner and John Mosher.

Ironically, Wettstone looks for the match to be decided in the side horse competition — on the Penn State side of the scoreboard.

"I think that they'll falter in the side horse, especially with the absence of DiFurio," he said. "The pressure will get to them by then."

If the vise doesn't get too tight for Temple, the Lions will have the manpower there to turn it. Almost completely recovered after a marathon bout with the flu, Bob Emery will make his first appearance since the Navy meet. He and junior star Dick Swetman will team up in the all-around for the Nittany squad.

"Emery" Questionable

A lot of attention, much of it needless, will be focused on Emery. It has been rumored throughout the ivy-less walls of Rec Hall that the senior co-captain has a dismount off the rings that will stupefy the judges, hypnotize the fans and blast a hole in the Berlin wall. While the move may not be all that exciting it would be a special treat to the populace watching if it could be done.

"It would be nice to see the move," Wettstone said. "If nothing else than for the sake of publicity. However, he's not completely sure of it yet and if the match is close, I wouldn't want him to chance it."

No one should be shedding tears if he isn't able to pull it off. Paul Vexler will return to action on the rings with a much sounder shoulder — which usually means a quick chalk-up of 9.5 or so. John Kindon will be hanging around to do his twisting iron cross that can rip your muscles just by watching it.

The match shapes up to be a battle of powers, an irresistible object colliding with an immovable force. Both teams look for a close but high-scoring match and both expect a win. It'll all depend on who folds to the pressure first — the Owls, the Lions or the judges.

Wrestlers Test Unbeaten Navy

By STEVE SOLOMON
Collegian Sports Writer

Who ever heard of a pussycat sinking a battleship? That compares to the task the Nittany Lion wrestlers face tomorrow as they travel to Annapolis to face the Midshipmen.

Coach Bill Koll says that his Lions will play the role of kittens in the meet this weekend. "We'll go to Annapolis like pussycats rather than Lions," said Koll. "We'll have to sneak up on them if we're going to win."

Navy coach Ed Peery has built himself a leak-proof battleship, according to Koll. "They have no apparent weak spots," he said. "They have strong men at every weight. If we're going to beat them, we'll have to beat them where they're strongest."

Koll is not the only one who admires the strength of the Navy crew of wrestlers. The undefeated Middies are rated the best hands at wrestling in the East and are picked as the sixth-best team in the nation.

Apparently the Navy crew thinks lightly of the Penn State wrestlers. "We're home free now," said Peery after his matmen had downed tough Lehigh, 22-12. The Navy coach does not think the Lion can put a dent in the armor of his smooth-sailing ship.

Koll is cautious about predicting a win over an overconfident Navy team. "They will be throwing a winning lineup at us," Koll said. "We'll need a good performance from all on the team at once for a win."

Koll added that Navy has no real outstanding wrestlers on the team in the lineup. "There are no national champions," he said.

Wrestling heavyweight for the Middies will be defending Eastern champion Mark Kane, who will have to contend with State's Bob Robel (2-0-1). Koll says the State youngster is "steadily improving."

The best clash may be in the 177-pound division where undefeated Lion captain Bob Funk will meet Bob Ahrens. Ahrens is considered a fine wrestler, and this will be a crucial match for the Lions.

Keefe vs. Captain

Navy captain Steve Comiskey will meet Dick Keefe (1-0). The two matmen will clash in the 137-pound division. Navy will present a good wrestler for State's John High to contend with in the 191-pound division. High (3-1) will be facing Ed Bannat.

Another highly-regarded Navy wrestler is a 160-pounder, Bob Christianson, who will meet State's Bob Abraham (1-3-1).

Also starting for the Lions will be either Bruce Balmat (2-4) or Barry Levinthal (0-0-1) at 123, Dana Balum (4-2) at 130, Don Stone (4-2) at 145, Clyde Frantz (4-2) at 152 and Jerry Gold (2-1) or Jim Crowther (0-3) at 167.

Not many people think that a pussycat has much chance against the big guns of the Navy battleship, but who thought an iceberg would sink the Titanic or that the North Koreans could capture the Pueblo?
