U. S. Bombers Blast Saigon Suburb

SAIGON — U.S. fighter-bombers pulverized a half-mile square area of modest homes and shanties in Saigon's southern suburbs early today but Viet Cong holed up in the rubble still fought on.

The aerial bombardment began near sundown Friday after rockets from helicopter gunships had failed to silence snipers who pinned down U.S. 9th Division infantrymen trying to push into the area.

The jets continued their strikes into the early morning south of the Kinh Doi Canal that marks the southern limits of Saigon proper.

U. S. officers said this was the last major holdout area of the enemy, which launched attacks against the capital Sunday in an apparent attempt to influence the peace talks in Paris.

"All the civilians left there two days ago," one 9th Division officer at a battalion command post said. "We're certain there are two reinforced battalions of Viet Cong in there and we're going to wipe them out."

Flooding Causes Derailment, Deaths

DALLAS, Tex. — Texas counted six deaths, many closed roads, a train derailment and washed out bridges yesterday from turbulent weather that brought up to a foot of rain and tornadoes by the dozen.

Flash flooding Thursday and yesterday temporarily crippled at least five cities and the excess water sent many creeks and rivers out of their banks.

The funnel clouds did little damage and not all of them reached the ground.

A new upper air disturbance, meanwhile, crossed the southern Rockies and bore down on West Texas bringing the threat of more severe weather.

Houston underwent a cloudburst of two inches in 45 minutes about noon, flooding police headquarters and rising into basement quarters in City Hall. A number of streets and underpasses of the nation's third largest port city were flooded. The roof of an automatic laundry collapsed. Two funnel clouds were sighted but did not reach the ground.

Medicaid Program Costs May Increase

WASHINGTON — Secretary of Welfare Wilbur J. Cohen says estimates of the cost of Medicaid, the federal program of medical care for the poor, may have to be raised sharply over projections made only last December.

Cohen told Sen. Carl T. Curtis, R-Neb., in a statement that while the annual federal cost of the program five years from now was estimated in December at $1.7 billion, the estimate probably will have to be raised to $2.5 billion or perhaps as high as $3 billion. The $1.7 billion estimate to which Cohen referred was made by a Senate-House conference committee in a report issued Dec. 11.

It now appears that the 1972 estimate will be almost reached this fiscal year, a spokesman for the Medicaid program said Thursday in response to a reporter's question.

Cohen's statement was in reply to questions submitted by Curtis prior to Senate confirmation Thursday of Cohen's appointment as head of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare. Curtis, a member of the Senate Finance Committee which considered Cohen's nomination, has long differed from Cohen's views on social-welfare programs.

Controversy Erupts in Teacher Firing

NEW YORK — The attempted firing of 19 teachers and administrators by a predominantly Negro local school in Brooklyn emerged yesterday as the newest controversy in the city's volatile experiment with community controlled schools.

Three special districts have been established in Negro and mixed neighborhoods in the past two years to test the efficiency of giving the community more control over a school system that is more than 50 per cent Negro and Puerto Rican.

All three have been roof-high in controversy one time or another with the citywide Board of Education. The latest battle erupted as the state legislature was about to consider the entire future of decentralization for the huge 1.1 million pupil system.

The 19—including a Negro and a Puerto Rican—were summarily fired Thursday by the community elected board in a special district composed of six schools in the slums of Brooklyn's Oceanhill-Brownsville area. The Board of Education told the 19 to ignore the notices, and said the local board had no power to hire and fire. The board won the grudging support of Mayor John V. Lindsay, a proponent of systemwide decentralization.

Freeing of Trapped Miners Expected

HOMINY FALLS, W.Va. — The families of 15 miners entombed for more than four days in a flooded Southeast West Virginia coal mine were told at 5 p.m. yesterday that the men would begin coming out in two to five hours.

Crowds of people began gathering at the mine entrance soon after the announcement.

Six ambulances were standing by to take the men to hospitals nearby.

C. E. Richardson, president of the company that owns the mine, said the trapped men would be taken out through the entrance. A tunnel that was being drilled as an alternate route had not been completed at the time.

The wall of an adjoining abandoned mine burst Monday sending millions of gallons of water coursing through a shaft, which is only 3 feet high in spots.

Giant pumps have been at work for days. The water level finally lowered enough yesterday to give hope for early rescue.

Telephone Contract Talks Break Off

PHILADELPHIA — Marathon contract talks aimed at settling a 16-day strike against Bell Telephone Co. of Pennsylvania broke off yesterday afternoon after 25 hours. The deadlock reportedly occurred over whether telephone company employees should install all underground cables or whether some of the work can be farmed out.

Bell accused the union, the 13,000-member Federation of Telephone Workers of Pennsylvania, of rejecting its own proposal on the farm-out question. Both the union and Bell said apparent agreement had been reached on wages, benefits and working conditions in the talks that started at 1 p.m. Thursday. They estimated the contract was worth about $22 million over three years.

"Suddenly we found ourselves hopelessly tied in knots over a distorted issue," said W. W. Kinkle, Bell's chief negotiator. Kinkle said the union had made a written proposal on the cable installation question which the union agreed to.

IDA Bill Tabled Lewis Commends USG Stand

By PAT GUROSKY

Collegian Administration Reporter
Charles L. Lewis, vice president for student affairs, yesterday commended the Undergraduate Student Government for its handling of the issue of the University's relationship with the Institute for Defense Analysis.

"I was satisfied to see students face a complex issue, debate it, and then act maturely," Lewis said. "Quite a few students took the time to find out more about the issue before acting. This was an example of responsible student exploration," he said.

Thursday night USG refused to demand that the University disaffiliate itself from IDA, claiming that it did not know enough about IDA at the present time.

Earlier in the week, Neil Buckley, regional organizer of the Students for a Democratic Society, had initiated a drive to have the University sever its ties with IDA, which researches and analyzes security matters for the Federal Government.

The drive culminated with the presentation of a bill to USG which was signed by 1,000 students, faculty members and alumni, asking that any IDA-University ties be ended. Elburt F. Osburn, vice president for research, reported Thursday that there is no IDA research on campus, but that individual professors do serve as consultants to the organization.

Lewis claimed that there is "nothing new" with the concerns students have regarding the ethical issue of science research.

"This is an example of the eternal problem of communication and understanding that will always be with us," he said.

Unanswered Questions

Lewis said he believed the IDA issue "got a thorough airing. Quite a wide segment of the student population spoke out. Such communication can prevent a major disruption on campuses," he said.

Lewis claimed that he didn't think all the Neil Buckley, regional organizer for the Students for a Democratic Society, announced last night that students petitioning the University to sever its ties with the Institute for Defense Analysis will meet at 1:30 p.m. today in 160 Willard.

questions surrounding IDA have been answered. "We have tried to answer as best we can what it (IDA) is and does, but there is still the need to use dialogues and seminars to discuss the issue. And that is what the University is for," he stated.

Lewis added that the State legislature has "debated for years" how much of the Commonwealth's money should be put into research at the University. "It is the underlying question of what is the University's role as a land grant university," he said.

Lewis claimed that he had not met with any SDS members concerning the IDA question.

Columbia Protest

IDA's affiliation with Columbia University was also an area of protest by students at that university in recent weeks. Lewis claimed that these incidents have renewed the question of what degree a university must become involved in the affairs of the community surrounding it.

"How far can a university go in involvement in the community before the University itself is changed?" Lewis asked. "This question has not been answered by the closing of Columbia University. It is a topic of constant debate," he said.

Clothesline Art Sale Featured

Arts Festival Ends Today

By DENNIS STIMELING

Collegian USG Reporter

The seventh and final day of the Undergraduate Student Government Spring Arts Festival will begin at 10 a.m. today with a clothesline art sale on S. Allen St.

The art sale will feature the works of student artists who wish to sell or simply display their pieces. The sale began yesterday and will continue until 10 tonight.

Several festival activities scheduled for Thursday were either postponed or cancelled by Tim Hare, festival chairman, due to rain.

Among the events not completed on Thursday were the student participation activities of painting the street and constructing the festival symbol.

Small Participation

Student participation in many of the festival activities has been below expectations, possibly due to Thursday's inclement weather. Today's activities will be the last ones of the festival and the last chance students will have to participate in the festival's theme, "Creative Man: a Language of His Soul."

The festival's main purpose, according to Hare, is to "make Penn State students more aware and appreciative of the arts." These arts include painting, sculpture, architecture, music and theatre.

Hare said he expects participation at the festival to reach its height today because of the great number of parents expected here for Mother's Day weekend. Hare said, "With the wide range of festival activities, it is within the interest of parents as well as students to participate."

floor of the Hetzel Union Building will be open today. "Dadaism" is the underlying concept of the Arts Festival. It was an art movement in the 1930's which attempted to repulse and offend as many people as possible through the medium of art.

First Violent Incident

Poor March Protestor Stabbed

By The Associated Press

Marchers in the Poor People's Campaign picked up more supporters yesterday as they moved toward Washington, but a demonstrator picketing the march was stabbed in Boston.

The demonstrator, who had been picketing the New England segment of the march since it started last Wednesday at Brunswick, Maine, was stabbed a block from where buses of the marchers were being boarded.

Knocked to Ground

Joseph Mlot-Mroz, who carried anti-Communist signs, was stabbed when his car window was broken. The 43-year-old self-styled Polish freedom fighter is from Salem, Mass., and is well known in New England for participating in demonstrations of all kinds.

He had been picketing across the street from the buses when he was knocked to the ground twice by bystanders. He went to his car, made a circle turn, and was a block away when he was stabbed.

He was placed on the danger list at City Hospital.

The Southern segment of the march headed for Macon, Ga., from Atlanta. It was to pass through the Social Circle community, which experienced school integration disturbances last year.

Hosea L. Williams, in charge of the Southern leg of the journey, spoke of improvements in organization.

"We are better organized in leaving Atlanta than we ever have been," he said.

He talked to newsmen at the Atlanta Stadium amid a pile of brown paper bags, and other baggage.

Williams said the Southern leg now was blessed with a luggage truck and 1,000 overnight toilet kits. He said reorganization includes a division leader for every 240 persons and squad leaders for every 20.

And he stressed nonviolence.

"We are going to have two nonviolent workshops each day," he declared.

The marchers from Tennessee—the first contingent scheduled to arrive in Washington—rode over the Great Smoky Mountains to North Carolina. The 11-bus caravan planned to arrive in Charlotte after a stop at Lake Junaluska, N.C.

May 30 Demonstration

From North Carolina, the caravan is scheduled to spend tonight at Danville, Va., and proceed to Washington tomorrow. Other groups will arrive periodically after that, ending in a massive demonstration May 30.

Soldiers assigned to riot control duty in Washington probably will carry unloaded weapons. They would be permitted to load them and fire only on direct order of an officer, or non-commissioned officer if an officer is not present.

The philosophy behind military civil disturbance operations is maximum show of force but a minimum use of force.

The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People's Legal Defense Fund announced it would handle all legal work connected with the Poor People's Campaign.

Leroy Clark, a fund attorney, said about 50 Washington attorneys have agreed to help the fund's staff of 15 attorneys and 250 cooperating lawyers throughout the nation.

Success for Everyone In 'West Side Story'

By ALAN SLUTSKIN
Collegian Drama Critic

There is a very old proverb that says, "don't bite off more than you can chew." There is also a generally held precept among modern-day directors that says the only way to get anywhere in the theatre is to reach for the sky and not to worry about falling on your face.

The opening of "West Side Story" proves that the Thespians took a big bite, reached very high, and came away without a single broken cheekbone.

"West Side Story" must be a candidate for one of the most perfect musicals ever written. The show incorporates song, dance, and comedy into a moving story that deals with the assimilation of Puerto Ricans into the "free country" of America, the sub-culture of teenage gangs in New York City, and, of course, young love. Simultaneously, however, it is also one of the most difficult musicals to stage ever written, and limitations such as the lack of available musicians and the physical inadequacy of Schwab Auditorium only add to the incredibility of the production that the Thespians have put together.

Perhaps most typical of the versatility achieved in this presentation, is the juxtaposition of two striking scenes. First, the alley scene, which features the song "Gee Officer Krupke," was interrupted not less than four times by sustained applause from a packed house. Bobbi Kurtz's imaginative choreography, Ned Trautman's skillful vocal direction, and director Frank Wilson's creative blocking combined to best utilize the elements of the musical and, at the same time, accentuate the light comedy that "West Side" is artistically laced with.

Depths of Emotion
The finale though brings to the surface the depths of the human emotions that this show strives to explore. Wilson's subtle insight into the delicate manner in which this scene had to be handled was the key to the entire production. His manipulation of movement, sightlines, focus and the rhythmic crescendo that created the necessary atmosphere to receive the climax was that of an inspired technician.

SLUTSKIN

Mardee Barber displayed a beautiful voice and the experience of a polished actress in her portrayal of Maria, and Sam Freed as Tony, turned out to be the best leading man the Thespians have come up with in a long time. Brad Sprankle, as Bernardo the leader of "The Sharks," came on strong with his overplaying, and surpassed all others in his mastering of stage fighting and the necessary dialect.

Bolsters Pace
Gay Eger, who portrayed Anita, Bernardo's girl, was a main factor in bolstering the pacing throughout and, aided by Bobbie Jones, as Rosalia, gave the song "America" the zest to bring out the significance that its lyrics hold for the overall theme.

Although Brian Freilino had a little trouble with some of his solos, he managed to capture the character of Riff, the leader of the "Jets." Freilino visually creates the inner turmoil that drives a young boy to rasp something as unglamorous as a few blocks of slums as a manifestation of security and a meaning for life.

With the exceptions of Mitch Swartz, who was a very unconvincing Lieutenant Schrank, and Dave Betts, who did very little to explore the comical possibilities of Officer Krupka, the supporting cast was more than adequate. Phyllis Ross, as Anybodys, was not only a believable tomboy, but contributed a great deal to the comedy and shows great promise as a newcomer to the Thespians.

Charles Sharp as Doc, and Roger Thomas as Baby John, were outstanding. Sharp mastered the physical requirements of age, and was potent as the representative of his generation that just isn't "hip" to the young people's problems. In a role that depicted the lighter side of the story, Thomas was by far the funniest character in the presentation.

Ups and Downs
From the technical standpoint, "West Side" had its ups and downs. For the most part, Davis Giersh's musical direction went well. Some of the renditions were a little low due to the absence of strings, but he did a fine job with the orchestration. Considering that on opening night in New York, Leonard Bernstein blew the "America" section of the overture, Giersh certainly rose to the occasion. Chris Clayton's lighting design was excellent in one or two scenes, but fairly unimaginative throughout.

Just as Miss Kurtz's choreography was the high point of the technical undertakings, so was Bob Buckler's scenic design the greatest disappointment. Aside from creating a perspective that gave the audience a feeling of the imposing presence of the characters, Buckler did little else. The sets provided the barest necessities and made no attempt to explore the scenic possibilities inherent in the scenario.

Letter to the Editor

Here Are the Male/Female Ratios

TO THE EDITOR: Horray! At least one male student at PSU is willing to admit that there is discrimination against women. This is some progress. Mr. Scafetta in his letter of May 9 was very concerned about the fact that PSU needs to train engineers and scientists in order to entice industry to Pennsylvania.

He seemed to imply that women who are in education, human development and liberal arts do not contribute to the welfare of the state. Need he be reminded that it is mainly women who are responsible for the rearing and early education of young children, some of whom will be engineers and scientists?

He also states that the universities in New York, New Jersey, and Massachusetts supply the "majority of the best qualified engineers, scientists, and business people." The fact remains that in the public universities of these states the ratio of men to women resident students is less than PSU: The University of New York System 1.27:1, Rutgers the State University of New Jersey 2.1:1 and at the University of Massachusetts 1.5:1.

One cannot discuss prosperity of the various states without at once thinking of California, one of the fastest growing, both in population and industry. According to Mr. Scafetta's logic the ratio of men to women in higher education in this state should be quite high. However, in the University of California System the ratio is only 1.57:1. Educating a high proportion of women seems not to have damaged engineering education in this public institution.

A sweeping generalization made was that "most of the state universities in the South and West observe male-female admission ratios much higher than PSU's low 2.5:1." This is simply not true. One need only check the publications by the Department of Health, Education and Welfare on enrollments in higher education to determine this. For example, the Universities of Arizona, Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, Tennessee, California, Colorado State University, Louisiana State University, Montana State University, and Washington State University all have ratios less than 2:1. The Universities of Wyoming, Arkansas, Florida, and West Virginia have ratios approximately 2:1. The University of Idaho has a ratio of 2.3:1. Admittedly there is one that is much worse than PSU — Mississippi State University with 4:1.

It is difficult to consider all this "foolish talk" as Mr. Scafetta suggests. For some reason it bothers me that in Twentieth Century America there are still people who feel that men, regardless of qualifications, are more entitled to an education than women.

'November' Uneven, 'Pawnbroker' Powerful

By PAUL SEYDOR
Collegian Film Critic

"Sweet November" is the story of Sara, a young woman who will eventually die from an incurable (and unnamed) illness. To make the most of her short life, she lets a different man live with her each month, while she cures whatever psychological hang-ups her hangers-on have. November's occupant — Charlie, a young executive who's always in a hurry — turns into something special. She falls in love with him, and he with her.

Now this sounds like a nice enough premise — despite the hackneyed incurable illness device — for a delicate, fragile, and even tragic film. Unfortunately, it falls a fair margin. A shame really, because most of its faults could have been avoided so easily.

For starters, the choice of Sandy Dennis as Sara is a fatal one. The part obviously calls for a Shirley MacLaine. Miss Dennis, even worse than in "The Fox," continues to substitute manner for matter, style for substance. It seems an impossibility for her to finish a sentence without stuttering once or twice. Her hands flit all over the place, her mouth pouts, her chin wrinkles. Her characters, buried beneath a plethora of mannerisms, rarely come alive.

Conviction and Warmth
Anthony Newley as Charlie lends conviction and warmth to a sometimes poorly-written role. For instance, the scriptwriters render his initial fascination with Sara not at all convincing. Nor, I'm afraid, does calling him a frustrated poet (circa 1940, it was always a musician) help much.

There is, of course, a stereotyped friend for Sara: Alonzo, The Only One Who Really Understands, given a wooden performance by Theodore Bikel.

Worst of all, the music score, complete with a soupy wordless-chorus, seems lifted from a Claudette Colbert ladies-romance. Thus, many potentially tender scenes are drenched in molasses once that sickening chorus oozes through the speakers.

Yet, as incredible as it may seem, with all the turgidity working against them, the writers manage to create a sincere and convincing love story. We believe in Sara's and Charlie's deep and abiding love for one another. And because of this, the sad ending in which they part seems only an affection of sadness. The result, of course, is maudlin. Sara's reasoning—"I want him to remember me as I am now, not when I die"—is feeble. Charlie's sudden decision to leave (a total change of mind within about two to three minutes) is ill-motivated.

It is hard to accept both the relationship as presented and the ending. They don't jive. We keep telling ourselves that she has found her meaning in him, that the point of Charlie's resoluteness is his desire to share her destiny.

"Sweet November" could have been a poignantly bittersweet love story. As it stands, it is by turns rather amusing, slightly touching, but mostly sentimental. Now playing at the State Theatre.

"The Pawnbroker"

Regrettably, time, or more accurately, lack thereof, prevents me from giving "The Pawnbroker" the comprehensive kind of analysis it so richly deserves. Suffice it to say, if this story of a New York Jew, who allows his victimization by the Nazis to alienate him from all of humanity, just misses drama, it is nevertheless, melodrama of the very highest order indeed.

Sidney Lumet's stunning direction—the highpoint of which is the brilliant use of a rather commonplace flashback technique—captures the naked reality and disgusting vulgarity of the protagonist's New York neighborhood. Rod Steiger, in unquestionably the finest performance of his distinguished career, draws the main character with depth and understanding.

It is sad that this film in its first release received such a mediocre reception from public and critics alike. "The Pawnbroker" is a gripping emotional experience, emerging as one of the most powerful motion pictures of recent years.

Tonight is the final showing at Twelvetrees. If you missed it the first time around, don't make the same mistake now.

Report Studied By State Board

Members of the State Board of Education accepted the Heale-Hobson report "in principle" at their meeting Wednesday in Harrisburg.

The report will be studied by the Board's committee on two-year colleges and community colleges. It was reported that the committee will refine the report and return it to the board in July for further consideration.

Heale, Hobson Associates, an independent education survey firm, released the report April 18, recommending that seven Commonwealth Campuses be converted to locally controlled community colleges, and that others merge or be phased out of operation.

Kenneth L. Holderman, director of Commonwealth Campuses, said last week he was pleased by the report because it "confirms something that most of us had known." He said, "Commonwealth Campuses operate efficiently, effectively and are academically sound."

Holderman is expected to discuss the report next Friday at a dinner meeting of the Organization of Student Government Associations and The Press Association of Commonwealth Campuses.

Two New Groups Chartered

The York Campus Chess Club and the Junior Jaycees of the Hazleton Campus were chartered by the Administrative Committee on Student Affairs April 9.

Revised constitutions for the Student Government Association of Beaver Campus and The Press Association of Commonwealth Campuses were approved by the Committee April 1.

Intercampus Finals

Behrend, Altoona and Ogontz campuses won championship titles last weekend in the Intercampus League finals. More than 75 students from 12 Commonwealth Campuses participated in the championship playoffs in table tennis, bowling and chess.

Behrend led the table tennis competition for the first time since 1962 when it won the title. Last year's champion in this event was Allentown Center.

The Altoona Campus bowling team won its second consecutive bowling crown. Jim Colombo (Altoona) was the highest scoring bowler in competition with a 192-point game average.

Ogontz Campus took the chess title from Altoona with a near perfect score. This was the first chess championship for Ogontz in the eight-year history of the inter-campus competition.

Walsh To Speak at Chapel

Chad Walsh, professor and head of the department of English at Beloit College, Wisconsin, and associate rector of St. Paul's Church in Beloit, will speak at University Chapel Service at 11 a.m. tomorrow in Schwab on the subject, "When God Is Silent."

After baccalaureate work at the University of Virginia and master's and doctor's degree work at the University of Michigan, Walsh became an assistant professor of English at Beloit College, in 1945, and in that same year became a convert to Christianity. He was baptized and confirmed at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in Beloit and in 1948 was made a deacon in the church. He was ordained a priest in December, 1949, and has served in that church since his ordination, chiefly as a weekend assistant.

The Chapel Choir, with Raymond Brown directing, will sing the Virgil Thompson arrangements of two Southern hymn tunes, and organist June Miller will play works by Bach and Pierre du Mage.

Dairy Princess To Reign At 43rd Annual Exposition

Dairy Princess Patty Marchezak (3rd-pre-medicine-Bentleyville) will reign over the 43rd Annual Dairy Exposition which will begin at 8 a.m. today at the University dairy barns.

Miss Marchezak, who was chosen from five candidates last Friday, will also represent the University in the state dairy princess contest.

A new feature of the exposition will be a calf dressing contest. Contestants will dress calves like hippies, little girls, teeny-boppers and tightrope walkers. The winner will be selected at 12 noon.

Other events will include a cattle and products judging contest, an ice cream molding contest and an awards banquet. In the products judging contest last Friday, participants tasted ice cream and milk samples to judge the flavor.

Sculptors tried to make works of art out of blocks of ice cream for the molding contest.

Some of the entries submitted Wednesday were Snoopy lying on his doghouse, a hamburger, a bathtub and a ukelele.

Cows at the barns are being brushed, washed and led around the ring in preparation for tomorrow's showing and fitting contest. Contestants will be judged on their ability to make the cows look clean and smooth as well as their ability to make the animals walk and stand properly in front of the judges.

An awards banquet, which will be held tomorrow night at the Spring Mills Fire Hall, will climax the Dairy Exposition. Winners of the various contests will receive prizes including trophies, cash, radios, cameras and plaques.

In the cattle judging contest, held Sunday, six 4-H teams and two Future Farmers of America teams from Pennsylvania high schools competed with about 35 University students. Contestants judged the cows on body shape and condition.

Hillel To Present Israeli Dinner

Tickets are now on sale in the main lobby of the Hetzel Union Building for the Hillel celebration of Israel's 20th anniversary.

The celebration will take place at 8 p.m. Wednesday at the Hillel Foundation, 224 Locust Lane.

Among the scheduled events for the evening are films on Israel, a dinner including lefalel (Israeli hoagie), and p'ia (bread and chumus (dip)). Also featured will be art from Israel, and Guela Zohar, an Israeli folk singer who has been touring the U.S. and Canada for three years.

Tickets may also be purchased at Hillel. They will be on sale until Wednesday.

Drill Meet Set; Newsletter Ready

Three drill teams of the Army, Navy, and Air Force Officers' Training Corps will compete Sunday afternoon in the 15th annual competition for the President's Cup.

The competition, which includes both standard drill and trick drill, is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. in Beaver Stadium.

The team amassing the greatest number of points in both phases of the competition will be the recipient of the President's Cup, presented by Eric A. Walker, University president. This is a rotating trophy, retired only if one team wins the competition for three years. Permanent trophies will be awarded the winning standard drill team and the winning trick drill team.

During the half-time ceremonies between the standard drill and trick drill phases the two coed affiliates of ROTC, Angel Flight and CAPEPS, will present coed trick drill demonstrations.

The program, open to the public without charge, will also include music by the Army ROTC Band and the Navy ROTC Band.

Jerry North, chairman of the Interfraternity Council Publicity Committee, has announced that "The Greek Orator" is now being distributed to the resident hall areas. House presidents and Association of Women Students officers will be in charge of distributing copies to independents.

North said that 2,500 copies of the Panhellenic-Interfraternity Council newsletter have been sent to the University's Commonwealth Campuses.

According to North, the purpose of the pamphlet is "to spread knowledge about the Greek system at the University." The first issue of the paper will contain articles on Spring Week, and the Greek pledge and rush programs. There will also be features on the aspects of sorority and fraternity brotherhood.

"The Greek Orator" will be published once a term.

"Psi Chi Day" will be held here today, sponsored by the National Honorary Psychology.

More than 30 research papers will be presented in the Hetzel Union Building from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Guest lecturer will be Dr. Richard C. Lundy, head of University's psychology clinic. A registration fee of $1.25 will be charged to cover the cost of refreshments. The program will be open to the public.

An unusual combination of voice and woodwinds will be featured tomorrow in a concert by soprano Lorraine Gorrell.

Miss Gorrell, an instructor in music, will appear at 8:30 p.m. in the Recital Hall of the Music Building, in concert with Smith Toulson, on clarinet, and Overda Page, on flute.

The program will also feature Miss Gorrell in a pianist usual combination, with pianist Mary Jedele.

Senate Explains Warning Rules

Under the new system of academic warning approved by the University Senate Tuesday, students will be dropped from the University after their third term if they have a grade point deficiency of 21 or more, Edward Mattil, chairman of the Senate's Academic, Admission and Athletic Standard Committee said yesterday.

It was incorrectly reported in Wednesday's paper that all freshmen had been eliminated from the drop action, to give them more time to get adjusted to University life.

First and Second Termers

This will apply to only first and second term students, Mattil explained.

The Senate defined a grade point deficiency as existing when the total number of grade points earned by a student is less than the total number of credits earned multiplied by two.

A student whose grade point deficiency is six or more will receive academic warning, which will be regarded as an official notification to the student that he is currently failing to meet the minimum grade requirements toward graduation.

Give your face an education in closeness. Without making it smart.

The new '68 Norelco Tripleheader 35T gives you a shave so close, we dare any blade to match it. And it won't nick or scrape either. Let this be a lesson to you: In independent laboratory tests this Norelco Tripleheader Speedshaver®—with floating Microgroove™ heads, rotary blades and pop-up trimmer—shaved as close or even closer than a leading stainless steel blade 2 out of every 3 times. What more could you want? Maybe the new Norelco Rechargeable Tripleheader 45CT. Same great Norelco shave and features. Works with or without a cord. And this Powerhouse delivers nearly twice as many shaves per charge as any other rechargeable. More features, too, including a 115/220 voltage selector so you can really shave anywhere. Let that be another lesson. Norelco

A Spring Festival: PSU and Art

USG's Arts Festival To End Today

ertain passers-by at the booth.

This entertainment has included a charity drive "to help the venetian blind," a contest for dinner for two at the Electric Diner, free elevator rides, a free location for students who wish to stand on their heads, and a petition to close the dadaism booth.

Today's schedule includes a modern dance concert, a watercolor demonstration and a light show jammy.

Car Painting

S. Allen Street has been transformed into a colorful array of balloons, parachute tents, paintings and other art forms for today's activities. Downtown merchants have cooperated with USG in this week's activities by providing free materials and by closing S. Allen Street to traffic.

At 12:30 today there will be a sidewalk and car painting period. All students have been invited to participate. Materials will be provided by the festival committee.

At 1 p.m. there will be a demonstration of watercolor painting on S. Allen Street. This is the last of a series of such demonstrations, which have included oil painting and ceramics.

Also, beginning at 1 p.m., will be a German Root Beer Garden set up on the street. Entertainment will be provided by the Little German Band of State College.

Several activities are scheduled for tonight, including a modern dance concert at 8 p.m. This concert, sponsored by the Modern Dance Club, will be held in the White Hall Dance Studio.

Bright Ending

The conclusion of this year's Spring Arts Festival will be at 12:30 a.m. tomorrow with a jammy and light show, beginning at 8:30 p.m. in the Birdcage in Hammond.

The jammy will feature the music of the Munchkins, along with the Mauve Electron Light Show in the glass enclosed area between Hammond and Sackett Buildings.

"To improve the means of communication between students and creative man," is the practical application of the festival theme, Hare said. "This can only be accomplished by student participation in festival events," he added.

Balloons and painted trash cans decorate festival, while students put up tent in street.

Soviet Troops at Border

Prague Reaffirms Policies

PRAGUE (AP) Czechoslovakia's national radio reported last night that thousands of Soviet troops moving just beyond the Czechoslovak-Polish border are engaged in planned Warsaw Pact maneuvers that the liberal Prague government was informed of in advance.

The statement came as Romanian sources in Bucharest reported Soviet infantry and tank units were concentrated along its borders with Russia at the Danube River and in former Romanian Bukovina. They were said to have taken up the positions earlier in May and in April.

Behind the Soviet buildup the Romanian informants said, was an apparent desire to put pressure on the regime of Nicolae Ceausescu, who has defied Soviet leadership in Eastern Europe. Other sources had advanced this explanation for the troop movements near Czechoslovakia, vastly more liberal internally than Romania.

Police To Continue Using Mace, Survey Shows

NEW YORK (AP) — Most U.S. police departments which have experimented with chemical mace for subduing aggressive citizens intend to continue its use despite reservations voiced by some medical men.

The primary chemical element in mace, which is made by the General Ordnance Equipment Corp. of Pittsburgh, is phenylchloroacetone, the main constituent of tear gas.

When made into mace, the chemical is mixed with a carrier fluid placed in a can under pressure. Thumbing a button turns loose a stream of the chemical which can be aimed.

Cheyney President Resigns After Protests

CHEYNEY, Pa. (AP) — LeRoy Banks Allen, president of controversy-ridden Cheyney State College, has submitted his resignation, it was announced yesterday.

Topping the list of "improvements" was Allen's resignation. Among the other demands were curriculum improvements, better quality teaching and more student control over campus activities.

Daddario To Discuss Science

The role of government in science and engineering will be the subject of a lecture at 8 p.m. Monday in Schwab, by Congressman Emilio Q. Daddario, of the First District, Connecticut.
