U. S. Fighters Hammer Enemy Force

SAIGON — U.S. Marines and warplanes hammered yesterday at an elite North Vietnamese force fighting with its back to a river 18 miles south of Da Nang. Leatherneck headquarters in the North.

It was the second straight day of furious fighting there and field reports said casualties numbered 130 enemy and 25 Marine dead. This put the toll for two days at 61 North Vietnamese and 51 Marines killed.

The battle is part of a mission named Operation Allen Brook launched May 4 aimed at crushing strong North Vietnamese forces threatening Da Nang and Hoi An, provincial capital to the south.

The strength of the North Vietnamese was shown Sunday when about 5,000 of them overran the fortified outpost of Kham Duc, about a dozen miles southwest of the present battle.

Student-Worker Strike Wave Strengthens

PARIS — Fresh strikes spread across France yesterday, engulfing the national radio-television network, Orly Airport and some railroads, but union leaders rebuffed a student bid for joint action against the government of President Charles de Gaulle.

The Communist-led General Confederation of Labor in effect warned the students whose demonstrations triggered the current wave of academic and industrial unrest to mind their own business. The confederation said it wanted to avoid any pretext for government intervention.

Thousands of workers put down tools and in many cases occupied their factories. The stoppages spread to parts of the government-owned railway system.

Reasons for the strikes varied almost from plant to plant, but few of the country's 95 geographical departments districts—were not involved. The various demands included higher wages, a reduced work week and earlier retirement ages.

Nearly 2,000 university students marched across Paris to express their solidarity with 13,000 strikers at the big Renault auto factory despite the snub from union leaders.

The Nation

Racial Protests Cool at Marquette

MILWAUKEE, Wis. — Marquette University administrators and leaders of a student racial protest used the first day of a 48-hour cooling off period for a series of separate meetings yesterday.

But status of six Negro basketball players who made a short-lived threat to withdraw seems again in doubt.

There were reports on the campus that Marquette, largest coeducational Roman Catholic university in the nation, was ready to hire a full time Negro administrator to recruit Negro students and faculty members as the demonstrators demanded.

No one in authority would comment.

The athletes involved met privately yesterday, then went into a closed meeting with school officials.

George Thompson, Marquette's top basketball player, issued a statement early yesterday following a meeting with Coach Al McGuire—that the players had reconsidered the resignations offered Thursday night.

Shantytown Housing $3 Million Short

WASHINGTON — A leader of the Poor People's Campaign said yesterday it plans a huge Memorial Day demonstration by one million persons—even though it is still $3 million short of housing the protesters already arriving. And he called for a halt in enlistments in the campaign for the present.

The Rev. Bernard Lafayette, the campaign coordinator, told a news conference $3 million is needed to complete construction of the shantytown settlement near the Lincoln Memorial. He gave no explanation why the simple, unpainted plywood shelters would cost such a sum.

Another 900 protesters arriving from New England and the Northeast were halted in the suburb of Greenbelt, Md., where hasty arrangements were made to give them bedding in church basements for at least two nights. Another caravan has been delayed in Pittsburgh, Pa., since Wednesday night.

The Rev. Ralph David Abernathy told a church conference in Minneapolis, Minn., that the encampment is running out of food, blankets, medicine and other necessities.

AFL-CIO to Lobby for Budget Slash

WASHINGTON — The AFL-CIO is mounting a major lobbying drive against legislation for a $6-billion slash in the federal budget, which labor leaders say would gut poverty programs and worsen racial problems.

"They are going to compound it and make it worse," a high labor source said of the effects of the proposed budget cut on the problems of poverty in the nation's slums.

The $6-billion cut in federal spending is contained in a House-Senate Conference bill, tied to President Johnson's request for a 10 per cent income tax surcharge.

Sources in the 14-million-member labor federation said a broad front of lobbying allies is being enlisted in the already started drive against the legislation, including civil rights and church groups, the National Education Association, the National Association of Rural Cooperatives and other organizations in the 140-member Leadership Conference on Civil Rights.

The State

Shafer Criticizes Senate for Inaction

HARRISBURG — Gov. Shafer sharply criticized the Senate yesterday for its refusal to act on a host of gubernatorial appointments to major state posts.

"The Senate has delayed much too long in not confirming by nominations," Shafer declared at a regularly scheduled news conference.

"This is not responsible. They should stop taking such a narrow view and bring them up and vote them down, if they choose."

Shafer's sharp reaction was prompted by questioning on the failure to confirm his three-member Horse Racing Commission, which has been pending since March 20. But he said his criticism could be applied across-the-board to other major posts including the State Board of Education, the Science and Engineering Foundation and labor secretary, all of which have been hanging for months.

On other matters, Shafer said he would not approve a bill proposing to allocate $27 million in state aid to non-public schools in the form by which it passed the House last week.

Shafer also said he favored a complete re-evaluation of the state scholarship program and indicated he preferred a plan which would combine outright grants with repayable college loans. The scholarship system has come under attack recently in the legislature as being tantamount to a give-away program.

Prospect of Deep Stalemate in Peace Talks

Hanoi Refuses Any Compromise

PARIS (AP) — North Vietnam refused any compromise yesterday on the issue of a complete halt to U.S. bombing of that country. The stand posed a prospect of deep stalemate in the preliminary peace talks.

With the talks resuming today after a two-day recess, a North Vietnamese delegation spokesman said Ambassador Xuan Thuy would again demand that the Americans stop the bombing and other acts of war against the North. Hanoi has repeatedly said it is unwilling to offer any concession in return.

The United States insists that an end to the bombing must be matched by some form of de-escalation of North Vietnam's contribution to the Viet Cong war in South Vietnam.

Hanoi Stands Pat

The U.S. delegation declined to be pinned down to any specific formula for a total end to the bombing, but it has tied such action closely to a restoration of a significant letup in North Vietnam's infiltration of men and supplies to the South.

Hanoi, the delegation spokesman said, intends to hold out indefinitely for a bombing halt.

"We will ask it again and again until it comes to pass," said the spokesman, Nguyen Van Sao. Asked if North Vietnam would offer anything in return, he replied: "There is not a single Vietnamese plane flying over the United States. The United States must stop the bombing. There is no compromise on this issue."

DMZ Lever

William J. Jordan, spokesman for the U.S. delegation, told correspondents a North Vietnamese agreement on any one specific point—for example, on restoration of the demilitarized zone between North and South Vietnam—would not be enough to justify an end to all military action against the North.

This gives the Americans some elbow room to maneuver. Jordan emphasized this by disagreeing with a questioner that restoration of the buffer zone—where heavy concentrations of North Vietnamese troops now operate—would bring an end to the bombing.

"I would say that the condition for the cessation of the bombing would have to be based on the total situation prevailing at the time," Jordan said, adding that such a decision would have to be made personally by the President of the United States. The aim of the American effort seems to be to seek a step-by-step matching of concessions, ruling out any gesture to Hanoi without assurance of reciprocity.

First Step

The first step might, as Ambassador W. Averell Harriman, the chief U.S. negotiator, has suggested, involve the demilitarized zone created at Geneva in 1954 when Vietnam was divided. If the North Vietnamese were willing to re-establish the DMZ, the United States probably would be willing on its part to take a definite step toward de-escalation of the war.

The next step might involve Laos and Cambodia, Vietnam's sister nations in what once was French Indochina. The United States wants the territorial integrity and sovereignty of the two agreed and guaranteed by international supervision. This could be a likely key to the total end of the bombing.

Laos and Cambodia both are routes for the infiltration of men and arms into South Vietnam. The restoration of the demilitarized zone alone would not prevent North Vietnam from continuing the infiltration, which the United States says it wants stopped or at least scaled down in return for a total bombing halt.

Future of Talks

If agreement could be achieved on these points, the meeting could proceed to complex questions of how to disengage the warring troops and to other military and political questions blocking the road to peace.

A North Vietnamese spokesman told correspondents Hanoi is prepared to continue talking, but would not speculate on how long the current sparring phase of the meeting would last or what might come next. The Hanoi representatives are not yet ready to end the phase of public debate, statements and exchanges of accusations. The Americans want the talks to go into private business sessions.

"We will go on talking and then we will see," the Hanoi spokesman said, a suggestion that it was up to the United States to make a concession first. He insisted, however, that "no common ground had been reached as yet."

PACC, OSGA Convene Here

By LINDA LETURGEZ
Special to The Daily Collegian
from Association Press Services

Kenneth L. Holderman, director of Commonwealth Campuses, said that the University is "walking the plank" with regard to tuition and increased student enrollment. He was addressing a joint dinner meeting of the Organization of Student Government Associations and The Press Association of Commonwealth Campuses.

Holderman said that the University is committed to a policy of admitting an additional 1,500 to 2,000 students yearly. "We must do this in order to meet our time table of 37,000 students by 1970," Holderman said.

"But the University is not assured of a State allocation to finance additional enrollment and rising operational costs," he said. Students want to know now, not next year, if they will be coming to Penn State next Fall, he told the group.

Keep Pace

The timetable was established so that the University can keep pace with increases in the State's college-age population and still enroll 12 per cent of the State's college students.

Holderman also discussed the Heale-Hobson report on Commonwealth Campuses and the $40,000,000 development programs in progress at the campuses.

He said that the Heale-Hobson study was only a report. It would require major State legislation to implement its recommendations.

'Valuable Study'

"The report is valuable to us as a study, but it has no profound effect on the way Penn State is going," he said.

During yesterday's OSGA session, major consideration centered on nominations of the Commonwealth campus representative to the Faculty Senate Committee on Undergraduate Student Affairs. Applicants for the position were interviewed last night, and the appointment will be made this morning.

Candidates for the seat are Thomas Ritchey, Altoona Campus; Beverly Abbott, University Park; Fred Sayen, Schuylkill; Aaron Arbittier, Ogontz; Mary Costello, Ogontz; Alan Krivoy, Ogontz; and Donna Watson, University Park.

Gerry Hamilton was unopposed in competition for re-election as president of The Press Association yesterday. Other officers are Thomas Coleman, executive vice president, and Gerry Winslow, executive secretary.

The Press Association will meet during the morning sessions of the Pennsylvania Press Conference today with the professional newsmen of Pennsylvania.

'Resist' To Initiate Protest For Spock

By JOHN AMPACHER
Collegian Staff Writer

A demonstration will be held in support of Dr. Benjamin Spock at 2 p.m. Monday on the Old Main lawn, according to Geoffrey M. Sill, a graduate student in English and member of the Freedom Union.

"The whole thing is being initiated by a group called Resist," Sill said. He explained that Resist was "begun by people like Paul Goodman and Noam Chomsky as a support group for the resistance."

"The demonstration itself will probably be mostly spontaneous," Sill said. "It won't be carried out and sponsored by any one particular group," he added.

Spock on Trial

Sill asserted that the demonstration will be carried out by "mostly individuals." He said that it will involve "the presence of some rock bands and informal extemporaneous speeches." Someone will probably read Dr. Spock's "Statement on Illegitimate Authority," he added.

Dr. Benjamin Spock will go on trial on Monday. "Spock's trial is not only his own but that of five people," Sill said.

"The problem is counselling resistance to the draft," Sill explained. There are two types of counselling in relation to the draft. The first is merely informing the draftee of his rights under the law. The second kind of counselling, which is the one related to Spock's case, involves telling a person to resist the draft by advising them to turn in their draft card, to refuse to go, or to not register with the draft, Sill said.

'Immoral War'

Dr. Spock, who is backed by Resist, is justifying his action on the basis that "the whole war in Vietnam is immoral from the beginning," Sill said.

Wayne O'Neil, a professor at Harvard, will be at the University this weekend to lecture on the draft and to help organize the demonstration for Monday, Sill said.

O'Neil will give a lecture on the draft and draft resistance at 8 tonight in 102 Wagner. He will also conduct a workshop on draft resistance at 1 p.m. tomorrow in 215-216 Hetzel Union Building.

KENNETH L. HOLDERMAN, director of the University's Commonwealth Campuses, addressed a joint dinner session last night of the Press Association of Commonwealth Campuses and the Organization of Student Government Associations. Both groups are here for weekend conferences.

IDA Protest Canceled

The coalition of students protesting the University's affiliation with the Institute for Defense Analyses called off yesterday's rally due to the resolution passed by the Undergraduate Student Government Thursday night.

The students were to have presented University President Eric A. Walker with a petition signed by more than 1,100 students. This petition demanded the release of IDA information by University administrators for student examination and the severance of the University's affiliation with the IDA.

On Thursday night the USG passed a resolution to be sent to President Walker requesting information on the IDA. Because of this action, organizers said, they canceled the rally in order to give Walker a "fair length of time" to reply to this request. They did not define what constitutes a "fair length of time."

The questions USG will present to Walker deal with the benefits that the University or IDA receive from their affiliation with one another, whether either party would be adversely affected by the severing of the ties and information concerning research done at the University.

Volunteers Wanted For Summer Work

Head Start Getting Underway

By GLENN KRANZLEY
Collegian Staff Writer

Project Head Start, which is aimed at preparing children with disadvantaged backgrounds for school, will be active in Center County this summer.

Wayne Eberly of 805 Old Boalsburg Road, State College, who is head of the Community Action Agency of Centre County said yesterday that University students will be able to help in the program this summer.

Eberly said that there may be no paying positions available to students, but volunteers will be welcome. Head Start can use volunteers on either a full-time or part-time basis.

Head Start is an agency of the U.S. Office of Economic Opportunity. According to Eberly, the program is not entirely educational, but its primary aim is "to get the child ready for the school experience."

The program is focused on pre-school children from disadvantaged families. It attempts to give them and their families aid in education, economics and nutrition.

On a national scale, Head Start consists of two programs. One is a year-round project, which involves children of all ages. Eberly said programs of this type are active in the Lock Haven school district. There is a possibility of another program of this type being established in the Tyrone school district.

But Eberly said the program his office is running is for summers only, and it involves only children who will be entering kindergarten in the fall.

Eberly explained that the organization of Head Start is on the classroom level. In each classroom there is a professional teacher. Assisting the teacher is a parent of one of the Head Start students. Eberly said these two positions are salaried. Also in the classroom are student volunteers.

Student volunteers need not work only in the classroom, Eberly said. They may also canvas neighborhoods, contacting parents and informing them on the Head Start opportunities available to them. Students may also help with chores such as baby sitting for Head Start parents while they attend meetings.

Eberly said that although students majoring in elementary education and child development may be most interested in the program, his office places no restrictions on volunteers' majors.

One of the major problems of the program is locating families to participate. Eberly said his staff is working on a survey to locate families that meet the program's requirements.

OEO has set up a scale for determining whether a family is eligible for aid from Head Start or another of its welfare programs. Children must be of a certain age and the family's income cannot exceed certain levels in order to participate in Head Start, Eberly said.

"Head Start's eight week summer project is only a small part of the OEO's programs. The OEO's goal is "total antipoverty efforts on the local scene."

Journalism School Accredited

By LINDA CUNNINGHAM
Collegian Staff Writer

Accreditation by the American Council on Education for Journalism in both the editorial and advertising options has been granted to the University's School of Journalism, H. Eugene Goodwin, director of the school, announced this week.

Goodwin said that the University's program, one of the 55 accredited programs in the country and the only one in this state, has been normally accredited by the council since the first group of schools were examined by the council in 1948.

In the period, 1961-64, the school did not seek accreditation because of revisions in staff and curriculum.

The ACEJ is the recognized agency for accreditation of journalism schools.

In order to receive accreditation from the Council, the head of the university must petition the agency for such recognition. Upon receiving a request, the university is asked by the Council to prepare a "pre-visit" report on the journalism program it offers and in what areas it is requesting accreditation.

The agency then makes arrangements to send a team to the school on a two-day fact-finding visit. This team consists of both educators in the field of journalism and at least one practitioner in the field. While at the school, the team attends classes, talks to students and faculty and evaluates the programs offered. It then prepares a report and recommends to the council whether or not the school should receive accreditation.

This recommendation is then reviewed by a panel consisting of educators and practitioners of journalism. The same procedure is followed when a school requests a renewal of its accreditation, as did Penn State in November 1967.

A copy of the report and a letter stating whether or not the school has been accredited is then sent to the head of the university. Journalism has been a part of Penn State since it was first established as a department in 1930. It was organized as a school in 1955. According to Fall enrollment figures, the school now has 264 upperclassmen enrolled in the undergraduate program at University Park. The University also offers a master's degree program from which approximately 25 students graduate each year. The school has a faculty of 14, nearly half of whom hold doctoral degrees.

A journalist "should be able to read the social indicators and tell society when something's going on in the world," Goodwin said. "He must be able to smell the trends in society."

How does a journalist become sensitive to things that may and many times do escape the ordinary citizen until it's too late? One, answer may be the University's approach to the study of journalism.

"We're strong believers in liberal education," Goodwin stated. Students enrolled in the undergraduate curriculum must take about 75 per cent liberal arts subjects as part of the school's graduation requirements. These include speaking and writing skills, foreign language, the humanities, sciences and social sciences. Subjects in the journalism major are not confined to the study of mass media techniques as such.

"Our program is somewhat like that offered at Illinois, Wisconsin and the University of Washington. We place a greater emphasis on the theory of mass media and the relationship of the mass media and society," Goodwin said.

"Five years from now, if we've done our job, we feel that our students will be better than someone who has concentrated on the techniques, even though the person who has learned the techniques may appear better the first period on the job because he has grasped the conventions of the media."

Students enrolled in the School of Journalism are eligible for a number of scholarships awarded by the school. Two scholarships are open to freshmen students regardless of their journalism majors. In addition, there are seven scholarships open to upperclassmen enrolled in the school.

Letters to the Editor

Pay the Price of Freedom

TO THE EDITOR: I think it is necessary to repeat once again that freedom is not free and those wishing it must be willing to pay the price.

It is a simple fact that if a University accepts funds from federal or state sources, the University must cooperate with and be influenced by the federal and state governments or else the funds will no longer be available.

Now it is fine to protest University ties with IDA and other government agencies, but then we must be willing to replace those funds ourselves. Some private institutions have seen fit to follow this road and tuition costs are as a result very high, making it impossible for people of limited income to attend them.

Tuition costs can be expected to rise at Penn State too. This is due to a large extent to the fact that the state and federal governments are becoming less and less convinced that the University is serving their interests, and thus we see their financial support diminishing.

I would suggest, that before we participate in any protests against IDA or any other protest which tends to alienate the government and the taxpayers from the University, that we count the cost. It is incongruous to protest IDA one week and increased tuition the next.

Complete independence and student-faculty control is possible, but we delude ourselves if we think any one is going to pay for that except ourselves.

'Sadly Misinterpreted'

TO THE EDITOR: Amidst the current racial controversy here at the University, editorialist Michael S. Serrill has emerged as the self-appointed spokesman and protector of human rights; particularly those of the collegiate Negro. This problem, one which has yielded an abundance of tasteless, pseudo-satiric comment during the past week, is also one which has been sadly misinterpreted by Serrill.

During a period when Negro equality is moving nearer reality through vast educational and technological advances, a proposal has been made by the young journalist to "lower the standards of our schools" in order that the underprivileged, and possibly, unprepared Negro can gain admission into institutions where once the academic doors were closed.

However, of central importance in the evaluation of racial difficulties, is the fact that bigotry and prejudice are largely the result of omnipresent educational lags; evidenced by the various socio-cultural myths concerning inherent biological, intellectual and moral deficiencies to be found in the black race. Obviously, if the members of the Negro community are to achieve their ideal of equality, the further degradation of the current academic system cannot provide an adequate solution.

A re-evaluation of educational goals and standards may be necessary with regard to the Negro problem, but the emphasis must always be directed toward progress—not digression.

Furthermore, Serrill views the demands of the Douglas Association as "not excessive" and that if the Administration does not recognize such demands "the black students will be justified in taking 'drastic action' to achieve their objectives. This would all be part of 'the black man's historic right to special consideration'" he continues.

It is immediately apparent what this "historic right has meant in recent years; too few organized, peaceful protests and increasingly large demonstrations of chaotic and meaningless violence. Such acts of hostility as seen recently in many of the major metropolitan areas, do little but further alienate the white populace and confirm their irrational prejudices. Seldom can violence be "justified" regardless of the underlying causes.

And when the smoke clears from the burned and looted cities, hopefully men, both white and black, will reflect upon these senseless events and work together toward greater unity and understanding.

But, Mr. Serrill, such goals will remain a distant dream unless educational standards continue to improve and the path of violence is disregarded as neither a prerequisite to human dignity nor a final solution to a constantly changing, as well as an increasingly complex social problem.

Skirting the Question?

TO THE EDITOR: Thursday night I attended the USG-sponsored forum for debate on the University's affiliation with the Institute for Defense Analyses. During the opening comments from the four faculty members which were supposed to be related to IDA, it was mentioned only four times. It seems that the faculty was intentionally skirting the whole research question. Are they hiding something from us?

Furthermore, I was distressed by the ungentlemanly-like conduct of Dr. Osborn, the University's vice president for research. He was obviously scared of something. He said, when asked about President Walker's obvious conflicts of interest, "I think you are now questioning Dr. Walker's integrity and if that is the case I say hell with you."

Later, after the discussion he was asked a decent and civil question by a group of students and told them, "Go to hell." Is this the type of person we want administering our school with the student interests in mind?

There is no joy in Happy Valley,
Mighty Rocky has struck out.

Letter Policy

The Daily Collegian welcomes comments on news coverage, editorial policy, and campus or non-campus affairs. Letters must be typewritten, double-spaced, signed by no more than two persons, and no longer than 30 lines. They should be brought to the Collegian office in person so that proper identification of the writer can be made. If letters are received by mail, the Collegian will contact the signer for verification. The Collegian editors reserve the right to fairly select, edit, and condense all letters.

Papers Requests Faculty Writers

University faculty are invited to submit articles to Collegian's "Faculty Forum." Columns of opinion from all members of the faculty are welcome.

The articles should be typewritten and triple-spaced and should not exceed 75 lines in length. Interested faculty should bring their articles to Collegian office, 20 Sackett Building.

IDA 'Forum' Served No Useful Purpose

By DENNIS STIMELING
Collegian USG Reporter

Thursday night's forum on the subject of University affiliation with the Institute for Defense Analyses was one of the worst hoaxes ever perpetrated on the University student body.

Jeff Polaski, student representative on the University Senate Undergraduate Student Affairs committee and organizer of the forum on behalf of the Undergraduate Student Government, had loudly announced beforehand that the debate would be a situation "during which facts may be brought out and a confrontation take place on this issue."

The forum at least began in that format. The first speaker, E. F. Osborn, University vice president for research, presented a factual synopsis of University involvement with IDA. He gave a concise picture as to why the University is involved and exactly what that involvement entails.

From that time on the "forum" degenerated into an SDS fest. After the opening addresses, the "forum" involved mainly the harangues of James Creegan, of Students for a Democratic Society, and his associates, on our "fascist nation" and "the imperialist American government."

Against Foreign Policy

When Creegan took the floor to present his remarks on University involvement with IDA, he used almost 80 per cent of his allotted time for a diatribe against American foreign policy. Among other statements he condemned the United States for suppressing "nationalist revolts which are formed by people trying to throw off the yoke of American domination and oppression."

Creegan ranted about the United States involvement in Vietnam, about alleged Central Intelligence Agency plots to overthrow the governments of Iran and Guatemala, and our "immoral, illegal and repressive activities throughout the world in maintaining totalitarian regimes."

He equated the United States to Hitler's Nazi Germany and claimed that the governments of Red China, Russia and North Vietnam are more democratic than our own.

Had to be Reminded

Creegan was constantly reminded to stick to the topic of IDA and the University, so eventually he got around to discussing that issue. His main and only reason for opposing IDA affiliation was that the University was thereby supporting the "authoritarian immoral government of this country."

SDS and its sympathizers packed the audience for the "forum". A more inconsiderate audience would be hard to find. They were openly hostile to the Administration and the faculty members of the panel.

When Osborn attempted to explain the make-up of the 'University Board of Trustees,' "one of the most representative in the nation," he was almost drowned out by the hoots and jeers.

On the other hand, Creegan's opinions, half-truths and allegations were often greeted with cheers and enthusiastic applause. This led Osborn to remark about Creegan's attitude, "I wish I were 21 again and knew all the answers." This was only greeted by more jeers from the audience.

The audience was not there "to get the facts about IDA," it was there to idolize Creegan and to attempt to ridicule the faculty and administrators on the panel.

At one point a member of the audience posed a query, questioning the impartiality of University President Eric A. Walker sitting on the Board of Trustees of IDA. Osborn responded,

"I think you are now questioning Dr. Walker's integrity, and if that is the case I say the hell with you."

This was also greeted with boos and hisses.

Neil Buckley, regional organizer for SDS, gave a short speech from the audience in which he claimed IDA was assisting the United States government in committing "genocide" against the black ghettos of America." This, like many of Creegan's statements, was totally unsubstantiated, but, also like Creegan's statements, this condemnation was greeted with cheers and applause from the one-sided audience.

Near the end of the forum the faculty members were becoming visibly exasperated with Creegan's illogical assertions. This led John Hagen, professor of astronomy, to say to Creegan and the audience detractors, "Give us some names of faculty members on IDA or just keep quiet."

All-Knowing Creegan

Creegan gave the name of one faculty member who he alleged was connected with IDA, but even the all-knowing Creegan admitted that he didn't know what the professor did for IDA.

At the forum's end, Polaski grandly announced that the following conclusions had been reached.

- President Walker sits on the Board of Trustees of IDA
- Faculty members are free to work for IDA in their own time
- There is no IDA research done on this campus.

Unfortunately, these "conclusions" had been common knowledge before the "forum" was held. The Daily Collegian had been editorializing on these "conclusions" for several days.

The only thing the affair accomplished was the unjustified ridicule and embarrassment of faculty members and administrators. In addition, it provided a podium for espousing SDS propaganda in an unfounded, unsubstantiated, absurd manner.

The forum served no useful purpose, it revealed no new facts, it only created new conflicts, more misinformed students and the possibility of radical action by radical minorities in the future.

UHURU!

... means Freedom! Freedom to determine your own life, earn human dignity, develop leadership. Freedom from racial strife. Freedom for black and for white.

Africa can give you perspective—black or white. And Africa is ready to give now. Its people are ready to share their spirit, their lives, their strength.

You can share in building Africa. Help teach its young people, its teachers. Help build its schools, its roads; train its farmers to grow better crops—to grow stronger people. Now.

This summer and fall Peace Corps will train Volunteers for Kenya, Nigeria, the Ivory Coast, newly independent Swaziland and other developing African nations.

Get involved. You'll learn a lot about people, a lot about you. And a lot about helping people learn what you've learned. Apply for Peace Corps training. Do it now.

Canadian To Speak Here

Kenneth M. Hamilton, associate professor of theology at the University of Winnipeg's United College, will speak on "Consider the House of Religion" at University Chapel Service at 11 a.m. tomorrow in Schwab.

Born in Sussex, England, Hamilton received bachelor and bachelor of divinity degrees from the University of London; the master of arts degree in philosophy from Dalhousie University, Halifax, Nova Scotia; master of theology degree from Pine Hill Divinity Hall, Halifax, Nova Scotia; and doctor of theology from Victoria University, Toronto, Ontario.

Ordained to the Congregational ministry in England in 1943, Hamilton served two pastorates in England before emigrating to Canada in 1951, where he became a minister of the United Church of Canada and served as pastor in Nova Scotia until 1958. He joined the faculty of United College in 1958.

A prolific writer, with articles on leading journals in England, Canada, and the United States, Hamilton is author of "God is Dead, The Anatomy of a Slogan," "In Search of Contemporary Man," and a book to be published this year, "John Updike, A Critical Essay."

The Chapel Choir will sing the anthem, "And I Will Exalt Him," by Handel, and Jeffrey Fox will serve as organist, playing works by Bach and Olivier Messiaen.

Council Grants Accreditation

Funds for these grants are obtained from interest on memorial grants donated by various individuals and groups.

There are eight internships also available which are normally awarded to sophomore and junior students. Arrangements under which students holding internships work vary according to the type of internship held and the needs of the donor. Such students normally earn about $75 a week. These awards cover all three options of journalism study: news-editorial, broadcast news and advertising.

Look at Future

At the present time the school is taking a hard look at its program. "No system is ever perfect," Goodwin said. "We're not sure that even our liberal arts requirements are fulfilling our goal of a strong liberal arts background. Students seem to be able to get through a lot of 'introduction to everything' courses without really being able to apply the knowledge they have gained."

What does the future hold for the school? Although the school does not edit a newspaper and doesn't care to start, there is talk from time to time of starting a laboratory magazine "to display some of the work our students do in class," according to Goodwin.

Several other ideas have been discussed although not with any concrete plans for fulfillment in the near future.

One proposal is to start an associate degree program at a commonwealth campus to staff small newspapers. Another is a cooperative doctoral program with other schools involved in the mass media. Those graduating from such a program would not be professionals, but would go on to research.

Goodwin has been director of the school since 1957. He holds both a B.A. and a M.A. from the University of Iowa. Prior to coming to the University he was associated with the Washington Star, the Baltimore Sun, and the Associated Press. Receiving a double B.A. degree, journalism and political science, his writing dealt mostly with politics. Goodwin was appointed vice chairman of the ACEJ recently.

Indian Movie, VISTA, Tree-In, Islam

Petroleum Economist
Wallace F. Lovejoy, well-known petroleum economist from Southern Methodist University, is the fourth distinguished visitor in a series sponsored during the Spring Term by the Department of Mineral Economics and the College of Earth and Mineral Sciences.

Lovejoy, who has done extensive work on the economics of petroleum and natural gas, will address the Earth and Mineral Sciences Colloquium at 4 p.m. Monday in 26 Mineral Sciences. The subject of his talk will be "The National Security Problem in Energy Policy."

Lovejoy also will present two talks to Mineral Economics Seminars. The first, "Petroleum Reserves and Producing Capacity - Problems in Concepts at Data" - will be presented at 8 a.m. Tuesday in 121 Mineral Industries. The second, "The Implementation of Oil Conservation Regulation" - will be given at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday in 244 Deike.

"Tree-In" Meeting
The "tree-in" and some of the broader issues symbolized by the protest will be the subject of a public discussion at 8 p.m. Monday in the Schlow Memorial Library, Allen St. and Beaver Ave.

Spokesmen for a group of State College Citizens said that the meeting, which has no agenda, was called for the purpose of making sure that concerned citizens do not again forfeit their voices in local government. Students and townspeople are invited to attend.

Sussex Psychologist
N. S. Sutherland, professor and chairman of the Department of Psychology, University of Sussex, will speak at 4 p.m. Tuesday in 75 Willard on "Outlines of a Theory of Pattern Recognition."

Lecture on Violence
Edgar Z. Friedenberg will speak on "Violence and Generational Conflict" at 8 p.m. Tuesday in 101 Chambers. He is currently with the State University of New York at Buffalo and formerly he was with the University of California at Davis.

The program is sponsored by the College of Education and is open to students, faculty and the general public.

Randian Objectivism
Charles M. Watkins, assistant professor of philosophy, will speak on Randian Objectivism at 8 p.m. Tuesday in 119 Bourke.

Watkins, who is on the faculty of the Albion Campus, will present a "sympathetic critique." Objectivism is the philosophy of Ayn Rand, author of Atlas Shrugged, The Fountainhead, and For the New Intellectual.

"Horace and the English Augustan Age" will be the topic of the third and final lecture to be given Tuesday by R. D. Williams, distinguished visiting professor of classics from the University of Leeds.

The program is scheduled for 8 p.m. in 338W, Pattee Library. Williams is a visiting professor at Penn State for the Spring Term.

Pottery by Kenneth Beittel, professor of art education, is on display in the gallery of Chambers Building. The exhibit, which includes two cases of porcelain and two cases of stoneware, will continue until May 31.

Near East Authority
George N. Atiyeh, head of the Near East section of the Library of Congress, will speak at 8 p.m. Wednesday in 101 Chambers. His subject will be "The Impact of Islam on the West."

The lecture, one of the Graduate School Lecture Series, is open to the public and is co-sponsored by the Institute for Arts and the Humanistic Studies and the Penn State chapters of Phi Delta Kappa and Pi Gamma Mu.

Atiyeh is an international as well as national authority on the Near East.

Educator Says Riots Peril Academic Rights

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — The ultimate victims of campus disturbances may well be the academic freedom rebellious students profess to cherish, a leading American educator has warned.

Logan Wilson, president of the 1,277-member American Council on Education, said in an interview that students' "rebellion against the establishment" is misplaced when it is directed at the university.

"It's easy to oversimplify. We all know the clichés—multiversity, neglect of students, faculty aloofness. I maintain that in the quietest of schools where these disturbances have occurred that dissatisfied youth have merely focused on the university some of the frustrations they see in the contemporary environment," Wilson said.

Restrictive Actions
By taking over buildings and forcing concessions from university administrators, students undermine the integrity and the free existence the university has come to stand for, he said.

"It's entirely possible that legislatures will soon restrict federal or state grants to students involved in riots, that university building funds might be affected by restrictive legislation, that the freedom of students, the freedom of faculties, the freedom of trustees even may be swept away because the university couldn't solve its problems," Wilson said.

The former University of Texas president, who is in Denver for a conference on the legal aspects of student-institutional relationships, urged "some unbending" by all groups concerned.

More Communication
Wilson said that with experience administrators will be able to handle student unrest better.

"What I think we're going to see," Wilson said, "as the Big Ten presidents have already done, is the creation of information councils my university administrators — and perhaps our council can play a role here — at which schools that have experienced these things share their experiences and solutions with other schools.

"At Columbia, which is a special case, we've seen that the faculty is taking a role in the resolution of these problems, and that pattern will be repeated at other schools. Universities will be more concerned with communications, they have to be now if everything the university community has come to stand for is not to be bulldozed away with more restrictions."

The American Council on Education is a coordinating agency for higher education. Its dues-paying members include colleges, universities, and regional and national education organizations. The council, founded in 1918, recommends educational policies to its membership and to legislative bodies.

Alpha Chi Sigma - McElwain Hall, "What if we find a cure-all drug?"

Theme and Originality
The skits which will be presented will be judged on costumes, stage decoration and props, adherence to theme, good taste, originality, and presentation. The facade for each tent will also be judged on adherence to theme and originality, and also on construction.

The posters and the "Mad Hats", which have already been evaluated, will be on display at the carnival. Refreshments will be available, and there will be several amusement rides featured.

The Miss Penn State finalists will be on hand to cut the ribbon and officially begin the Carnival at 2 p.m. A large crowd of students and spectators from the Blue-White games are expected. Also attending as guests of the Class of '69 will be orphans from throughout central Pennsylvania.

Several other events have been added to Saturday's round of activities. The Blue-White game is scheduled for 2 p.m. in Beaver Stadium. A gymkhana will also be held starting at 12:30 p.m. in the East Halls parking lot. Each participating group in Spring Week will sponsor a car in the competition.

Although optimistic about the weather, Carnival co-chairmen Stu Bodow, Beth Bell, and Norm Feldstein have announced that the rain date for the Carnival will be Monday.
