Office for Student Discussions To Select Permanent Director

(Continued from page one) thorough said. He also emphasized the director will be required to seek out the opinions of all minority groups within the University.

Present Both Sides

Jim Dorris, editor of The Daily Collegian, said: "The director could present both sides of the problem. This way, at least all opinions will be presented."

Replying to criticism that this function is being handled by students now, Sudborough said, "We don't have the right to go there (into committee meetings and Senate meetings) right now and speak as a full representative."

Sudborough said he is hoping for the selection of a man "who will represent students; who thinks along student lines; and someone 'who would push a little bit.'"

Harold Richard, adviser to Young Americans for Freedom and a member of the audience, asked how the students members were going to select one person to represent all students.

One-Sidedness
"I don't think they are going to represent the majority of students on the University," Richard said. He cited as an example of their one-sidedness the agreement of all student members that racism is the major issue within the University and the fact that all these students supported tomorrow's National Vietnam War Moratorium.

Students on the committee are: Sudborough, GSA president of the Organization of Student; Dorris, editor of The Collegian; Ron Batchelor, president Government Associations and Ted Thompson, president of the Undergraduate Student Government.

Thompson said to Richard that, through their positions, "We make ourselves available to all students." He added that many of the students he talked with held a "conservative" viewpoint.

Richard warned that "you're going to have another substantial body of students saying we don't agree with him (the director)." Richard was referring to criticism that students had not been included in the selection of Jacob Kaufman as temporary director of the Office.

Legion, VFW Heads Protest Moratorium

HARRISBURG (AP) — The chief spokesman for the American Legion in Pennsylvania declared in a statement yesterday that "irresponsible demonstrations such as are proposed for Oct. 15 only serve to give aid and comfort to the enemy."

The statement issued from the veterans' organization here came from State Commander Henry R. Woods of Pittsburgh, and was in reference to the proposed "moratorium" protests against the Vietnam War scheduled for tomorrow.

"I have requested the more than a quarter-million Legionnaires throughout the state," said Woods, a fire captain in Pittsburgh, "to display their flags on that day, and to display red, white and blue ribbon or crepe paper streamers on their auto antennas as a symbol of loyalty."

Woods said the "American Legion is as concerned as anyone about the present conflict," but he added:

"But like many, I have come to feel that the failure of the majority to speak out for that in which they believe borders on an endorsement, by omission, of the radicals who would destroy us from within."

public his objections to any nominee.

Cunningham said he did not favor a method which would require public criticism of a candidate. He also said he felt this method would put the committee "in a roadblock position."

The committee rejected a proposal by Sudborough that a black be selected as director of the office. Richard told the committee, "If you say he has to be a black man, you've turned this Office off." One member of the committee added this move would severely limit the men who could be considered.

Under a procedural agreement, each meeting will be chaired by a student-faculty pair. The next meeting will be conducted by Sudborough and H. B. Urban, professor of human development.

IFC Bill Gives Coeds 24-Hour Visiting Rights

By BETTI RIMER
Collegian Staff Writer

Women may soon be able to visit fraternity houses on a 24-hour basis, according to a bill passed at last night's interfraternity Council meeting.

The bill now goes to the Administration Committee on Student Affairs and if passed will immediately go into effect.

The bill was originally proposed at an executive meeting last week, but voting was delayed due to technicalities.

'Approved' Housing

Difficulties arose concerning the effect the bill would have on the fraternity's classification as "approved" University housing.

Harv Reeder, IFC president, explained that there were questions about students in fraternities receiving Pennsylvania Higher Education Assistance Association scholarships which are awarded only to students living in "approved" housing. However, since PHEAA is no longer paying room and board, students are not required to report their place of residence.

The other problem concerned the standing of the fraternities with the Liquor Control Board Tom Eschbaugh, Board of Control president, said that the new visitation policy will in no way affect the fraternity's status with the Liquor Control Board.

Reeder said, "Passage of this bill merely means each house may make its own regulations. According to IFC rules parties must end at 2 a.m., but what happens next is up to the discretion of the individual houses."

The fraternity system will be further altered by a revision of rush regulations also approved at last night's meeting. The bill, sponsored by Eric Krivoy (7th-English-North Miami Beach, Fla.) president of Zeta Beta Tau fraternity, calls for a liberalized rush policy.

The bill states that first term freshmen may rush but may not receive a bid until they are second term standing or above. The first term student may go through 10 weeks of informal rush and then enter the usual three week period of formal rush.

A Better Look

Krivoy said, "Allowing first term freshmen to rush will give both the fraternity and the rushee a better look at one another. The first term is very low on the social totem pole and this should improve his situation somewhat."

In other business, Reeder called for "an immediate attempt to reevaluate the structure of the fraternity system."

Reeder said, "We must take a look at the role of the fraternity in the University. In the past we have had an attitude of isolation. Concerning happenings on the other side of College Avenue, we've said 'this is not our bag.'"

"IFC has the potentiality to be a viable organ. I think we can become more of a political organization. IFC has operated for too long in the present light," Reeder added.

To Reevaluate the System

A committee has been set up to reevaluate the fraternity system. A report is expected within a few weeks.

In what Reeder described as "another step in concerning ourselves with matters outside the fraternity system" IFC unanimously passed a resolution supporting the National Vietnam War Moratorium in protest of the war in Vietnam.

The resolution calls for "a day when Americans should refrain from business as usual, and work for peace."

An announcement was made at the meeting that IFC will present the Iron Butterfly at 8 p.m. Nov. 1 in Rec Hall. All proceeds will go to a scholarship fund. Tickets will go on sale starting Oct. 27.

Artists Series Presents Mod Shakespeare

"Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead" will come alive in the two performances 3 and 8:30 p.m. Saturday in Schwab.

The play, a modern interpretation of "Hamlet," was written by Tom Stoppard, a British playwright. Described as being "very funny, very brilliant" by New York Times drama critic Clive Barnes, the play relates the melodramatic events at Elsinore topsy-turvy seen from the viewpoints of the confused college chums Rosencrantz and Guildenstern, who are sent to spy on their old classmate.

After receiving favorable reviews from Time, Life, Saturday Review and the New Yorker, "Rosencrantz and Guildenstern Are Dead" was awarded the New York Drama Critics Award and the Tony Award as the "Best Play of the Season" for 1968.

Shakespeare's original play "Hamlet" starring Richard Burr will be presented 8:30 p.m. Friday in Schwab by the Producing Managers Company, currently the country's most prolific producer of national touring companies.

Free tickets to both plays, presented by the University Artists and Lecture Series, are available to students at the Hetzel Union Building desk beginning today from 1:30 to 5 p.m. The distribution to students and the general public will continue through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. The cost to the public is $2.50.

Nixon Speech Set for Nov. 3

If a president, any president, allowed his course to be set by those who demonstrate, he would betray the trust of all the rest."

Dicks later told newsmen he is satisfied with Nixon's reply. Ziegler said those words would be Nixon's only words on the demonstrations tomorrow.

Nixon on Monday afternoon with his chief negotiator at the Paris peace talks, Henry Cabot Lodge. But the White House released no details of the meeting.

A presidential spokesman said Lodge would return to Paris in midweek.

House in Session All Night? The outcome of efforts of supporters of the demonstration to keep the house in session all night remained in doubt yesterday.

The planned protest stirred a wave of Vietnam debate in the Senate where two former supporters of U.S. involvement joined the bloc demanding withdrawal of American forces. Sen. Frank E. Moss (D-Utah) told the Senate current policy is not working.

"I recommend, therefore, that the United States must cease all offensive military action in Vietnam at once and proceed to withdraw all combat forces as swiftly as can be done without endangering American lives," Moss said.

Sen. Thomas J. McIntyre (D-N.H.) said the United States should "get out of Vietnam with all due speed." McIntyre, once ranked among the hawks, said "Whatever the merits or the mistakes of our involvement, I believe the time has now come to extricate ourselves from the quagmire that is Vietnam. Our own nation is tearing itself apart under the ordeal of Vietnam," McIntyre said in a speech in Hanover, N.H.

Judge Overrules Permit Refusal

A federal judge ruled yesterday that a peace group in Charleston, W. Va., could have the parade permit it had been denied for tomorrow's Vietnam moratorium.

The ruling came amid growing national controversy over the day of protest, which W. Averell Harriman, former chief U.S. negotiator at the Paris peace talks, endorsed as a "move toward peace."

Charleston Police Chief Dallas Bias had refused to grant the Charleston Coalition for Peace a permit for a candlelight procession, but Judge John F. Field overruled him and said Bias' views, and the judge's own views, were "utterly irrelevant." Bias had said the demonstration would aid and comfort the enemy.

Harriman made his endorsement of the moratorium at a news conference, where he was announced as one of the winners of the New York Council of Churches' "Family of Man" awards.

The former New York governor and new ambassador said he did not agree with Secretary of State William P. Rogers that criticism of President Nixon's policy would delay peace.

Defense Dead: 'It Ain't So'

By DON MCKEE Collegian Sports Editor

The death might have been the most celebrated demise since the Edsel moved on to the happy hunting grounds. Famous writers gathered and eulogized the passing of a great American institution. Enthusiasts migrated with the changing football climate to the South, the last area of the country where the object of their lavish attentions could be found.

The current gridiron season was billed as the year that offense would take over the college game, just as it had captured the hearts of the pros. The scoreboards are going to blink like pinball machines," said the experts. "The day of defense is no more." Even the South seemed ready to join the rest of the country.

But the wheels of change move slowly in central Pennsylvania—or maybe a sharpie called Joe Paterno just designed it to work that way. While the rest of the country is frantically trying to score, score, score just to stay ahead, the Lions are winning with good, old fashioned, hard-hitting, immovable defense.

When West Virginia rolled into Beaver Stadium Saturday, it had the nation's leading offense and highest scorer. People said the Mountaineers could score on anybody, including maybe the Los Angeles Rams.

They didn't score. They didn't even come close. They got into Penn State territory three times. "Penn State's defense is fantastic," Mountaineer coach Jim Carlen said. "It's the greatest in the country. I'm not sure that even Ohio State is better than Penn State."

The powerful Mountaineer backs moved the ball on their first series of downs, but when Mike Smith intercepted a pass to halt the drive, the game pattern was established.

"It's not that we start slowly," State's All-American linebacker, Denny Onkotz, said. "It's that the other team's all fired up. They've got good backs and we can't stop them cold. We're not gods or anything."

"It doesn't bother us at all to have a team move in the first quarter," Onkotz continued. "We just keep hitting them—they slow down. By the time the third quarter comes, we hope to have it in control."

"All week we were told how much offense they were getting," linebacker Mike Smith said. "We figured they hadn't been in a tough game for 60 minutes."

Other defenders also showed the Lions' determination to play rugged football for the full 60 turns of the clock.

"I read a quote by Carlen where he said he didn't think anyone could stop their rushing game (Continued on page eight)

Shutsout Mountaineers, 20-0 State Deflates West Virginia

When Penn State edged Kansas State, 17-14, a lot of people raised their eyebrows. Were the Lions losing their touch? Was State's football team really uncatchable? The pollsters dropped Penn State to fifth.

Then State did a complete turnaround and shut out the top offense in the country. The Lion offense ran over the second best rushing defense in the nation for almost 200 yards. The eyebrows are back down now.

According to Lion coach Joe Paterno, it was a "mature" State team that clobbered West Virginia, 20-0, last Saturday before a record 52,072 fans. "The game against Kansas State was a growing up game for us," the Lion mentor said. "It was a pressure game. As the result of that game I think we played with a little more assurance and confidence."

"We hoped we could sneak up on Penn State," said West Virginia coach Jim Carlen, "but two things prevented it. First, they were scared by Kansas State and second, they dropped in the polls. They were ready for us."

The Mountaineers gave State trouble in the first half, mainly on the running of backs Jim Braxton and Bob Gresham. Carlen decided to go right at the Lion strength as he double-teamed both Mike Reid and Steve Smear, hoping to aim his running attack at one linebacker at a time.

But Carlen admitted that he miscalculated his game plan. "You just can't get ready for a Reid and a Smear until you actually play a Reid and a Smear," he said, "and the only time you play them is when you play Penn State."

Fool Lions The Mountaineers still managed to fool the Lions in the first half. "I was surprised we could run up the middle, but not around the end," said Braxton. But "they were just too tough the second half."

"We tried some different things on Reid and Smear the first half," said Carlen, "but they soon figured them out. You can't fool those two for long."

"We're extremely pleased with the way the Lions captured their 15th straight victory. "Today was our best complete game to date this year," he said. "I was very, very pleased with the overall game. Our throwing was better, our overall offense was good, our defense was great once again and our kicking game came through."

Paterno gave the Mountaineers a lot of credit. "They were playing very well offensively," but we were playing great defensively," he said. "They just ran out of State."

State linebacker Jim Kates was named to the Eastern Collegiate Athletic Conference weekly Division I team, for his part in the Lions' shutout win.

A 68-yard pass from Chuck Burkhardt to Lydell Mitchell set up a two-yard plunge by Franco Harris in the second period and broke up the scoreless duel.

Mitchell Scores The first time the Lions got the ball in the second half, they marched 64 yards in 10 plays, capped by a seven-yard touchdown burst by Mitchell.

Backup quarterback Mike Cooper engineered the third Lion scoring drive with a 59-yard march in 12 plays. Charlie Pittman went in from the one to score the final TD.

The Nittany Lions voted Burkhardt the game ball after the contest and Carlen will tell you why. "They tell me this guy can't pass," he said. "Well, all he did on third down was hit the guy who was open. He just didn't make a mistake."

Burkhardt was just one of the Lions who grew up a week ago. The whole team showed that it, like wine and cigars improve with age. — DD

V HOGG T E Freshman Class President. I propose in lieu of establishing a complete book store on campus as the USG desires, that books be purchased only in the major fields such as English, Mathematics, the Sciences, and generally all other college courses that 50% of more the students will be required to take. Each succeeding term the original funds (and the profit if there is any) would be re-invested. After four or five terms the bookstores down town would be confronted and asked to drop their prices to a reasonable level and keep the prices down. If they complied, the on-campus book store would close down. If the stores won't drop their prices then the USG bookstore would spread into more fields each term, obtain a permanent building and would remain. After the store has firmly established itself and is able to supply textbooks for all courses, prices can be dropped to just above wholesale price. ... If the IFC pushes through their proposal for twenty-four hour visitation, I feel that with enough support, better visitation hours for the dorms could be obtained. ... I feel that the coeds should not be required to live in the dorms until they're 21, but just three terms as it is for the boys. ... I would also like to have formal open discussion every two weeks.

Sherwood, Carlen: Another Chance Lost

By DAN DONOVAN
Assistant Sports Editor

The mountains of West Virginia echoed with spirit last week. From the Evansdale campus to downtown Morgantown, the students told each other how their magnificent football team would crush a haughty, overconfident Penn State.

End zone tickets were going for 30 bucks a crack and plans were made to sleep outside Stadium for standing room tickets. Some people actually were at the gates at 2 a.m.

Mountaineer fans had been waiting for this game almost since they hired Jim Carlen as head football coach four years ago. The "wait 'til next year" after last season's 31-20 disappointment grew from a grumbling noise into a deafening roar.

The Penn State game was the big one on the schedule and the Mountaineers made no bones about it.

"Penn State has become our biggest rival," Carlen said.

"We can beat everyone on our schedule, including Penn State," said one Mountaineer player.

Dreams of national ranking and bowl games danced in the heads of the West Virginia players. They wanted to pull the upset of the year.

"There is nobody in the country who wants to beat Penn State more than my players, coaches and myself," Carlen said in his best inspirational manner.

These dreams were shattered on the field last Saturday as the Lion's brutal defense and efficient offense ground out a 20-0 shellacking. And the Mountaineers were open-mouthed in the astonishment.

"We hoped to sneak up on Penn State," Carlen said, "but we didn't. They were ready for us."

Carlen is not the type to be at a loss for words at any time, even after being outclassed by the Lions. He praised his conqueror saying State was among the best in the country. Only once did he falter. Asked about his team's morale after working so long for disappointment, he just said, "Well, we've just got to prove we're No. 2 in the East."

Jim Braxton, the West Virginia running back who gained 89 yards in the first half but only seven in the second half was visibly disappointed. He sort of listened rather than talked to parents who had made the trip up from Vanderbilt, Pa., and then turned unhelpfully to talk to reporters. "They were too strong," he said dejectedly. "They were just too strong all around."

The most disappointed of all the Mountaineers may have been quarterback Mickey Sherwood. His confidence had been shaken to the foundations by a Penn State defense that remembered with a vengeance how he had manhandled it last season.

"I was throwing badly," said the youngster, looking more penitent than Mickey Rooney after he ran away from Boys' Town. "I didn't throw a lot in game conditions all season, and it's very different throwing in the games."

Sherwood may have summed up the feelings of the whole town of Morgantown, the student body, Carlen and his fellow players in one sentence.

"This game meant a lot to our season," he admitted. "It wasn't the whole season, but it was our chance for the big time."

The agony of defeat.

Trip WVU Harriers Win 1st

By BOB DIXON
Collegian Sports Writer

With the complexities of modern life, today's youths are confronted with more and more obstacles which they must overcome. The youths of the Penn State cross country team however, have thus far handled most of the obstacles that have stood in their way, including both the hills of Morgantown and the Mountaineers of West Virginia U.

The Lion harriers, once again led by sophomores Greg Fredericks and Jerry Henderson, won their first meet of the season Saturday, downing West Virginia, 22-35. The meet was to include a third team, East Carolina, which didn't show up because of several runners being out with injuries. State evened its record at 1-1, having lost to national champion Villanova in its opener.

Fredericks and Henderson led the Lions for the second straight week, this time finishing one-two. The sophs had placed fourth and fifth in the Villanova meet.

Fredericks Wins Handily

Fredericks won the race in good time, finishing the hilly 5.1 mile course in 26:12.8. He and Henderson led the pack after the first mile, then the pair kept pulling away during the rest of the race. Henderson's time was 26:35. West Virginia took the next two places, as two of their youngsters led their attack. Sophomore Mike Mosser finished third in the race with a time of 26:37. He battled both of the leaders throughout the race but finished at the finish. Behind Mosser was freshman Bill Huntington.

State Overpowers WVU

Three of the next four places were taken by State and it proved to be too much of a lead for the Mountaineers to overcome. Senior captains Jeff Deardorff and Jim Dixon gave good performances and finished fifth and sixth. Matt Chadwick, another Lion soph who has looked good thus far, also ran a fine race and took eighth place.

Lion coach Harry Groves had words of praise for his team. "On the whole, the team looked much better than in the Villanova meet — they stayed together better," Groves said. "Fredericks and Henderson were improved. Deardorff and Dixon ran as well as I've ever seen them run and Chadwick had his best time thus far."

"The team handled the hills there real well and ran like a real team — staying together in groups. I think that's what beat them — us having two runners out front and another three in the middle."

Things are looking up for the Lions. They now have a victory, and with each meet they can add another quality to the youth they already have...experience.

Palmer Gets Nod As Orioles' Starter

NEW YORK (AP) — Frank Robinson tested his ailing left instep in a batting drill yesterday and reaffirmed his belief that he would be able to start the third game of the World Series today.

"My foot feels much better than I thought it would," Robinson said after hitting several line drives to the fences in Shea Stadium, as the Baltimore Orioles practiced at the home field of the New York Mets.

"My bat hurts more than my foot," Robinson said, referring to his 0-for-7 mark at the plate as the Mets and Orioles split the first two decisions.

Robinson suffered the injury when he rapped a foul off his foot in batting practice prior to Sunday's game. He played until being removed for a pinch runner in the ninth inning.

A former National League and one of the few Orioles who had even seen Shea Stadium before, Robinson said he had not hit particularly well at the field when he played for Cincinnati.

"I don't know why," he said. "The background is good, and the measurements are honest for the hitters."

Jim Palmer, Baltimore's starting pitcher today, looked at the dimensions, however, and said it was "a short park."

"They never build a park big enough for a pitcher," Robinson said. "If there were no fence at all, Palmer would say, 'That building out there is a little close.'"

Minnesota Fires Manager Martin

NEW YORK (AP) — Tempestuous Billy Martin, who won battles on and off the field in his first year as a major league manager, lost a war yesterday when he was fired by the Minnesota Twins.

Twins President Calvin Griffith, citing Martin's refusal to follow front office "policy and guidelines," announced the dismissal in New York, where he is attending the World Series.

Although Griffith would not talk about a possible successor, several names have been circulated as prime candidates, among them Eddie Yost, a New York Mets coach, and two recently deposed managers-Dave Bristol and Hank Bauer.

Martin is the ninth manager in the majors this year to lose his job... and the fifth in the American League West.

Al Lopez of the Chicago White Sox quit last spring because of poor health; California fired Bill Roney and Oakland dismissed Bauer before the end of the season and Kansas City's Joe Gordon resigned during the pennant playoffs.

Defense Dead: It Ain't So

(Continued from page six) for 60 minutes," Jim Kates said. "Well he found one team that could. A game isn't won in one or two quarters." State's two defensive captains, Mike Reid and Steve Smear, explained the unit's preparation for a game which seemed a throwback to 1930's. "People were saying that we had a great defense," Smear said. "Well we said to ourselves 'put up or shut up.' We felt that we could stop them. If you ever have any doubts, you're lost."

"We were more ready for this game than any other," Reid said, "both mentally and physically. I mean, we were REALLY mentally ready. It's not a gung-ho type of thing, just a concentrated effort."

And while all those teams are hanging 50 points a game on the scoreboard and firing 35 complete passes and still losing half the time, the State defenders keep stopping the opposition cold. It may be old fashioned—but it wins ball games. Oh, how it wins games.

Harris Plows Through Pile

BARELY BOUNCING into the end zone is Lion fullback Franco Harris (34). The soph, shown following a block by center Warren Koegel (56), has scored in each game so far. He gained a total of 44 yards in 11 carries against West Virginia.

Hodges Platoons Again; Names Gentry to Start

NEW YORK (AP) — Gil Hodges benched Sunday's heroes in a four-man New York Mets lineup switch for today's third World Series game as the scene shifted to frantic Shea Stadium with the Orioles still favored after a two-game split at Baltimore.

Gary Gentry, a 23-year-old rookie who won the National League East clincher but was roughed up in the playoffs, will face Jim Palmer, who threw a no-hit, no-run game for the Orioles Aug. 13. Gentry was 13-12 in regular season and Palmer, a young man with a history of shoulder and back trouble, was 16-4 for the American League champs.

The weatherman was not too optimistic in his forecast of cloudy skies with a chance of showers despite 70-degree temperatures. But not even this dim prospect could still the enthusiasm of the "Let's Go Mets" customers who will come with banners high some 56,000 strong to greet the Amazon in their first series game at home.

Manager Hodges, a master technician in the tense moments of Sunday's exciting 2-1 Met victory, returned to his left-handed lineup which bombed the Atlanta Braves three straight for the National League pennant.

That meant benching Al Weis, whose single won the second game. Ed Charles who had two hits, Donn Clendenon, the home run hitter with a .429 Series average, and Ron Swoboda, who made two saving catches behind Jerry Koosman. The four had a composite batting average of .308 in the first two games.

Into the Met lineup went Wayne Garrett, the red-haired rookie third baseman with the home run bat that eliminated the Braves; Art Shamsky, in right field, a .538 hitter against Atlanta; Ken Bozwell, a .333 bomber at second base in the playoffs; and Ed Kranepool at first base. The four had hit .380 in the playoffs.

Of course, the reason for the shifts was the change in Baltimore pitching from the lefthanded variety of Mike Cuellar, opening day winner, and Dave McNally, Sunday's loser.

Palmer, who will be 24 tomorrow is a right-hander who was one of the disabled list for 42 days from June 29 until Aug. 9 with a torn muscle in his lower back. His last start was an 11-2 breeze in the final game of the three game American League playoff sweep over Minnesota.
