Lodge Minimizes Moratorium Support

PARIS — Citizen support for the antiwar moratorium in the United States was minimized by the American delegation after the demonstration was praised by the other side during the Victnam peace talks Thursday.

The North Vietnamese and the Viet Cong sought to attach importance to U.S. dissent as a way of bringing the war to an end on their terms. In reply, U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge warned them against relying on "false expectations about events in the United States."

about events in the United States."

Stephen Ledogar, spokesman for the U.S. delegation, placed additional emphasis on this theme. "It is vital," he said, "that the other side not misunderstanding or miscalculate in making its assessment of President Nixon's ability to sustain his efforts in this quest for peace."

Lodge told his adversaries: "The evidence shows that the great majority of American people support the President as he seeks a just peace."

North Vietnamese Attack Near DMZ

SAIGON — Sovere fighting erupted early yesterday near the demilitarized zone, with North Vietnamese troops attacking an American company in night bivouac in the enemy's biggest assault in the area in more than a year.

Military spokesmen said the battle flared just before 3 a.m. when 500 North Victnamese assaulted a U.S. armored company in its night defensive positions 3½ miles from the demilitarized zone separating the Vietnames. Spokesmen claimed 104 enemy soldiers were killed by massive American firepower. Seventeen Americans were reported killed.

The U.S. Command reported that 12 North Vietnamese have been killed in two days of sharp clashes in an area six miles southwest of the allied outpost at Con Thien near the zone. Total U.S. casualties are listed as 22 killed and 53 wounded.

Mrs. Gandhi Wins Vote of Confidence
NEW DELHI — Prime Minister Indira Gandhi, bolstored
by a show of support within her divided Congress parts, maneuvered yesterday to keep her majority in India's Parmament.

Fresh after her expulsion from the ruling Congress party by old guard leaders, Mrs. Gandhi won a vote of confidence Thursday from about 300 of the 429 Congress members in both houses of Parliament.

houses of Parliament.

At a special party caucus, the Congress members adopted a resolution declaring "invalid and unjustified" Mrs. Gandhi's expulsion Wednedday. There was one abstention and no opposing votes because Mrs. Gandhi's opponents boycotted the meeting.

But she lost the support of some important party figures, including Labor Minister Jaisukhal Hathi, who resigned.

A no-confidence vote is expected to be taken in Parliament next Thursday.

Special Troops Surround Washington

Special Troops Surround Washington

WASHINGTON — Specially trained troops equipped with the weapons of war stood at the ready around this nervous city yesterday as antiwar forces massed for the start of their "march against death" to the U.S. Capitol.

The three-day protest, culminating Saturday in a march of perhaps 250,000 on Pennsiyvania Avenue, was launched as the centerpiece of a nationwide series of weekend antiwar demonstrations.

The avowed aim of what the New Mobilization Committee called history's greatest peace demonstration is to persuade President Nixon that the great American majority—and not a silent one—wants an immediate end of the war in Vietnam.

Crack, riot-trained troops, were deployed around the city overnight and this morning. Another 28,000 men in nearby military installations already were on alert.

Senators Pick Sides on Havnsworth Issue

Senators Pick Sides on Haynsworth Issue

WASHINGTON — Two more senators quit the thinning ranks of the undecided yesterday, one coming out for the Supreme Court nomination of Clement F. Haynsworth Jr. and the other against.

Republican James P. Pearson of Kansas said he will back President Nixon's nominee although "I do so with some concern."

Democrat Stuart Symington of Missouri said he will vote against because "the feeling of hostility and frustration which this nomination has evoked could only be exacerbated by honoring a jurist who does not have the highest sense of ethical considerations."

According to an Associated Press tally, the declarations of Pearson and Symington leave 23 senators who have not definitely committed themselves one way or the other. The AP count shows 40 who have definitely committeed themselves against and 37 who say they will vote for confirmation.

Prison Policies under Attack by Officials

HARRISBURG — The confinement of special "juvenile" status inmates at Camp Hill State Correctional Institution, the Welfare Department's prison-of-last-resort, is under attack. Such a confinement, critics charge, mixes juvenile delinquents with hardened criminals. Others say the system, in effect for 15 preserves feelings.

Legislation sought by the Justice Department would allow only youths convicted in a criminal court to enter the 700-acre institution, which is more a trade school for serious offenders than a place for paying one's debt to society.

The reform was proposed by Atty. Gen. William C. Sennet before the Senate prison task force recently. Sen. Richard A. Snyder, R-Lancaster, head of the task force, sought binarissan support in the House and Senate for the weather.

Administration Acts on Discovery Of Use of Undercover Informers

Vice President for Business Ralph E. Vice President for Business Raiph E. Zilly attempted last week to rectify the discovery by a faculty member last spring that students have been hired by the University Security Department to conduct undercover surveillance operations over chartered student organizations.

In a letter to Arthur O. Lewis, chairman of the University Senate, Zilly asserted that University President Eric A. Walker "was unaware that this had taken place and has issued instructions that hereafter no student is to be hired or in any manner be paid to become an informer on student organizations or other students"

The letter continued, "It is my understanding that the specific incident that raised the questions involved a student member of the Campus Patrol who was asked to attend

Ken Schwartz, president of East Halls Council, yesterday vetoed a bill passed by EHC which calls for liberalized visitation

The bill reads in part, "The visitation policy shall be decided by each individual residence hall either through residence hall meetings or a student referendum in that residence hall and shall apply only to that residence."

that residence. Through these measures each residence hall may limit visitation to whatever days and hours which suit that residence hall."

Schwartz said he had three reasons for vetoing the bill. "This was the first time that I have vetoed a bill passed by EHC and I feel that I had good reasons for doing so. For one thing, the bill is unconstitutional. Section 6 states that the bill will be sent to MRC and AWS (the Association of Women Students) for approval, but one student body cannot ask another to approve its bills. If the legislation was in the form of a resolution it would have been constitutional."

Second Objection

Schwartz' second objection to the bill concerned the University Senate. "They have given the rights to determine visitation hours to the individual residence halls. The entire area(EHC) has no right to pass binding legislation on visitation.

Maisie Benefield (5th-political science Bloomsburg), one of the EHC members who proposed the bill, said, "Sure we can go through channels and hope that we get it through. But if the Senate decides to ignore it, we should assert ourself and implement it without Senate approval. We should move the privilege of governing residence hall life from the Senate to the residence halls. Why should the Senate legislate on student life? Senate Inquiry

The letter is the result of an inquiry by the University Senate after a deposition by one student, detailing his duties as an undercover agent for the Campus Security, was brought to the attention of Senate officials by a faculty member.

Joel Baughman, a graduate student in economics who was then an undergraduate, said he discussed his former employment with the Campus Patrol with a member of the faculty. He said the professor agreed that the issue should be brought to the attention of the Senate and sent a cover letter along with Baughman's deposition to Laurence H. Lattman, then chairman of the Senate Committee on Undergraduate Student Affairs, requesting that appropriate action be taken.

In his statement, Baughman explained that he had been employed by the University as a campus patroliman and was asked by William C. Pelton, director of Campus Security, to do some undercover work.

Baughman said the procedures established were that he was:

—not to be seen around the Campus Security Building.

—not to recognize Pelton in public. —would be instructed by telephone concerning the meetings and activities he would attend, and —to drop off a written report at 100 Old Main after each event or any time that he had information that might be of interest to the security division.

Baughman said the reports were to be identified by the last three digits of his service number.

Explaining his duties further, Boughman stated in his deposition, "I was to acquaint myself with the identity of the leaders of student leftist groups. # Agnew Says Networks Hold Too Much Power

DES MOINES, Iowa (A) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said yesterday the television networks hold an un precedented concentration of power over American public opinion, and suggested it may be time they are made "more responsive to the views of the nation.

"Mr. Harriman offered a broad range of gratuatous advice-challenging and contradicting the policies outlined by the President of the United States," Agnew said "Where the President had issued a call for unity, Mr. Harriman was encouraging the country not to listen to him."

Justification Compulsion

Agnew recalled that Harriman served ten months as chief U.S. negotiator at the Patis peace talks, and said "Mr. Harriman seems to be under some heavy compulsion to justify his failures to anyone who will listen."

He said "A raised evebrow, an inflection of the voice, a caustic remark dropped in the middle of a broadcast can raise doubts in a million minds about the veracity of a public official or the wisdom of a government policy."

Agnew conceded that the networks "have made important contributions to the national knowledge," having often used their power "constructively and creatively to awaken the public conscience to critical problems."

"But it was also the networks that elevated Stokely Carmichael and George Lincoln Rockwell from obscurity to national prominence," he said.

Agnew said: "The American who relies upon television for his news might conclude that the majority of American students are embittered radicals, that the majority of black Americans feel no regard for their country, that violence and lawles ness are the rule, rather than the exception, on the American campus.

Use of Wrong Strategy Restricts Numbers

By ERNEST C. POLLARD

Evan Pugh Professor of Biophysics As one who wishes to see more black students at Penn State, I am disturbed by the strategy of some of the black students. I think it is working to restrict their numbers here and therefore is the wrong strategy.

From the point of view of removing the cultural gap which has created so much difficulty, many-actions at Penn State have been very commendable. Departments have sacrificed research funds, personal gifts have been made, quite careful observation and help has been given to students supported by those departments.

The Penn State students and alumni

POLLARD have shown that they are concerned. We have an elected, not appointed, black member of the Board of Trustees, elected by our alumni.

Our President of USG, elected by the student body, is black.

As far as I know, even though many of the students admitted under the special program came in late, not one was housed in a staging area. Some hundreds of Penn State students are in that condition: black students are not. This means that considerable good will exists here.

Speaking for the biophysics department. which has shown concern from the first days of the special program, we do this simply because we like black students. We have no conscience nor feeling of guilt. The room is better when a black student walks in.

Now this program cannot, as it stands, expand. In committees in our college, we have discussed adding more students next year. We cannot do it. To do so requires funds we don't have. Only one or two departments feel that they can add any students next year. This means we now have to have outside funds and these must come from the taxpayer.

Unfortunately, the taxpayer is being told that Penn State is a racist institution, that demonstrations against the Administration are taking place and the best feeling he can get is one of confusion. Such is not the attitude which develops generosity with funds. I suggest the most effective strategy is for the black students to say the following: The Universities are in the lead in their treatment of blacks. They may have some changes to make, but they are, nevertheless, sincerely trying. Penn State is also trying. The program as started this year has seen an increase in black student enrollment. It is not enough, but the experiment has begun and should be continued and modified, not halted as it starts.

Therefore, the black students wish to support all these efforts and to ask the legislature of the State to augment the funds both for the University as a whole, for that will aid the blacks, and also for the special program designed to remove the temporary cultural

If this were done, a large part of the University, many of the alumni, many friends of the University would have greatly increased strength in bargaining with the legislature. I believe it would prevail and we would see, for the first time, funding to back our efforts on a scale commensurate with what we both can and carnestly wish to do.

In a war situation, wrong strategy is most costly. It is not especially costly to the generals who follow it - they die in bed. But it costs hugely in wasted casualties among the rank and file. I write this because I believe the blacks are fighting on a local front where the battle is clearly won, while they are not even thinking of the kind of strategy needed to win the battle yet to be fought. Very rarely can the generals themselves reverse a strategy - but someone must.

As I see it, in today's situation, where to advance we need to enlist the help of our whole society, every strange and specially symbolic salute which appears in a picture in some paper means so many less blacks will be educated next year. I deplore it.

Cure for Apathy?

TO THE EDITOR: What is this epidemic which has been going around this campus for years, the disease called apathy? What causes it? More importantly what is the cure?

what is the cure?

So often when you listen to a group of students talking, they are complaining about something that is wrong with the University. But when the time comes for action, where are all these students? Somehow, no one is interested in taking action.

Contrary to the belief of most students, there are many professors who are just as dissatisfied with this campus as we are campus as we are.

The problem is that students and faculty never get an opportunity to meet and discuss these problems, especially after 11:00 p.m.

This weekend students had the chance to get together and discuss problems with each other, with faculty members and with people from all over the United States. But what happened? The HUB was swarming with people, but very few of them got together to have serious discussions.

We are not condemning the reactions of the people at the HUB on Friday and Saturday nights, because this was one of the few times everyone had a chance to get together and have a good time.

Colloquy week is now over, but the meaning of Colloquy—to converse and discuss—should not end; now is the time to take some constructive action.

We prepose having workshops, perhaps biweekly, where interested students and faculty members can get together, discuss problems, and decide on some action to be taken.

The workshops can carry on discussions which were started this week on the educational topics ranging from architecture of dorms and classrooms to methods of teaching to perhaps a complete passfail systim. These workshops can discuss and find solutions to problems pertinent to our campus life.

In the past week Colloquy has attempted to bring students and faculty together and to build lines of communication between them. Colloquy has started this unification; but it cannot be successful without their support.

"Tradition is fading," Junior Class President Mike Kleeman agreed. "We're still trying to get the spirit, but that's trivial. The president must go beyond spirit and into the academic world, trying to make it relevant." he said.

In addition to their efforts to raise money for a class gilt, the juniors sponsored the first class forum and are confident of obtaining a national figure for commencement, Kleeman

Senior Class president Saul Solomon called the editorial a "misrepresentation of facts." Solomon asked, "If there were no presidents, who would take care of commencement and class gifts?" # OSGA: Should Bills Campus Campaign Underway Be Campus Consensus To Keep Federal Library Aid

Collegian Staff Writer

By KARL KELLER

Collegian Staff Writer

Library administrators at the University, fearful of proposed cutbacks in federal education appropriations, are currently sponsoring a campus-wide campaign to enlist support for congressional measures to restore some of the federal aid to libraries.

The proposed cuts would amount to a reduction of 66 per cent in federal aid to libraries, According to the members of the Faculty Relations Committee of the University Libraries' Subcommittee for Legislation, the effects of such reductions would be "disastrous."

The sub-committee has drawn up a petition urging Sen. High Scott and Sen. Richard Schweiker to support Labor-HEW Bill H.R. 1311 which will, according to the petition, "restore significant sums of money to library and school programs." Copies of the petition have been placed in libraries throughout the University. Each faculty member will also receive a copy.

The appropriations bill, already passed by the House, is currently in hearings in the Senate. According to the petition, the bill should come to a vote in the Senate sometime around Thanksgiving.

Mrs. Elizabeth Ellis, chairman of the subcommittee, stressed the urgency of the situation. "We want to let the University know what we're doing." Mrs. Ellis said. She said that she hoped the petitions would get to Senators Scott and Schweiker as roon as possible.

Mrs. Eliza also pointed out that support for the appropriations bill have proched a particulation.

Mrs. Ellis also pointed out that support for the appropriations bill has reached a nation-wide level. Organizations such as the American Library Association and the Citizens Committee to Save Education and Library Funds also are working for passage of the appropriations measure.

A concerted effort is also being made in the University community.

"We want to extend outside of the self-interest area," Murray S. Martin, a member of the subcommittee, said. If the appropriations are not approved, Martin said, "The person who suffers the most is the person who uses the library."

"We don't want just an 'in group,' "Martin said. "We expect to hear from the hitherto silent community."

Martin also explained the effect the proposed Martin also explained the effect the proposed cutbacks would have on library services at the University. He pointed out the three major effects the reductions would have reduced funds for special purchases, "drastically" reduced funds for federally supported cataloging programs and no funds for research into library systems and organizations.

Martin pointed out that there are cataloging programs on the international level, as well as the national level. He said these programs would probably be reduced as well the national level, He said these programs would probably be reduced as well

"The Library of Congress sets out to acquire a copy of all the worthwhile materials throughout the world, with the object of having them available, as well as to provide catalog cards for those materials," Martin said.

Martin noted that to do this in individual libraries would cost $50 million and cause much delay in cataloging. In some cases, Martin added, the brooks would not publicly be available.
"Were going to spend a great deal more money doing less of a job," Martin continued. "The difference is six to cight dollars multiplied by 25,000 to 30,000 volumes."

Baha'i Week Continues With Teach-In Tonight

Baha'i Week activities, which began Wednesday with the presentation of the movie, "A New Wind" as an explanation of the Baha'i faith, continues tonight at 8 p.m. with a teach-in in Dining Room C of the Hetzel Union Building.

In keeping with the teaching of the Baha'i faith, finding a spiritual solution to the world's problems, the topic of tonight's teach-in will be "The Destiny of America—The Brotherhood of Man."

teach-in will be "The Destiny of America—The Brotherhood of Man."

Among the panelists scheduled to participate in the teach-in are four out-of-town members of the Baha'i Faith. One of the guests, Lucy Crane, a housewife from Philadelphia, is known among the State College Baha'i as an authority on love.

Also from Philadelphia, Joy Victory will be a member of tonight's panel. A member of Baha'i for three years, Miss Victory has travelled to Europe, the Middle East, Israel and Africa and has appeared on two television programs in the interest of the Baha'i Faith.

Other panelists include Earl Falls, a student counselor at a community college in the Philadelphia area, who teaches the Eaha'i Faith to high school and college students, and Marty Minney who served under the National Baha'i office in Wilmette, Illinois.

Tomorrow's Baha'i activities include the presentation of a play entitled "As Our Cities Burn" at 8 p.m. in 105 Forum.

Joseph Mydell and Susan Leich, creators of the play, describe it as "a trip through America as Baha'i sees it today—convulsed and distorted by deep problems—racial prejudice, war, greed, immorality; but bearing with it, the hope for an unparalled age of human prosperity."

The play presents this view through song, dance, mime and words, many of them from the Baha'i writings.

Preceding the play will be a new singing group, Youth for One World, which is making its first appearance at the University.

in such reporting activity. "When I became involved in it, it was apparent to me that this 'undercover' work' was an attempt to monitor the political activity of certain groups. I do not consider such activity to be responsible behavior on the part of the University administration, and feel that such surveillance can only lead to mistrust and more disruption. I, therefore, terminated my service with both the patrol and campus security on Feb. 16, 1969," he said in his deposition. Baughman also indicated the activities he had been assigned to attend, including three demonstrations and the apcluding three demonstrations and the appearance of Dick Gregory in the fall of 1968.

The faculty member responsible for bringing the issue to the attention of the Senate, who prefers to remain anonymous because "this is not a personality issue," explained in his letter the implications of the issue and his concern for it.

He said when he tried through "other channels" to pursue the issue privately, he was told that this type of surveillance is necessary on the grounds of potential danger to life and property. He rebutted the argument saying that if a serious threat to life and property exists, it is more likely to come from mental aberration than political calculation. He said, "To jump from a potential threat to covert surveillance implies a touchingly simplistic and naive understanding of social processas."

He pointed out also, the "spiral" set in motion by such actions. He said when the actions are discovered by the groups involved it justifies counteraction to them. And, he said, the very presence of such agents increases the probability of events occurring which their employment is supposed to thwart.

He added that the causes of conflict are posed to thwart.

He added that the causes of conflict are unlikely to be resolved by such action because "these methods generate an atmosphere of acrimony, charge and countercharge and alienation."

He concluded that "if one wants to maximize the likelihood of endangering life and property, I can think of no surer way than maintaining a condition of institutional turmoil and vendetta."

Baughman - Not Satisfied

Baughman — Not Satisfied

Baughman said he is not satisfied with the action Zilly has taken on the issue as indicated by his letter to Lewis.

He told The Daily Collegian he believes that Zilly's letter attempts to de-emphasize the seriousness of the issue by referring to a singular meeting where there are several involved.

"He further implies that only student members of the Campus Patrol are involved, but makes no mention that the Security Department can hire non-campus patrolmen for such activities in the future," Baughman said.

for such activities in the future, Dadgiman said.

He said the intent of his deposition and the cover letter by the faculty member was not only to prevent the Campus Patrol from spying on students, but to prevent any student spying on students.

"Using students for surveillance of other students is corrosive of what we hold to be our rights to privacy in a democracy," he said.

Sorority Winter Rush Proposals May Abridge Current Schedule

By HELEN O'CONNELL Collegian Staff Writer

A tentative schedule for Winter Term sorority rush was completed at Tuesday night's meeting of the Panhellenic Council Rush Com-mittee.

The schedule, which will be presented as a proposal at the Panhel meeting Monday night, provides for rush activities beginning with a registration Jan. 4. The first rounds for rush will be held Monday. Tuesday and Wednesday. Second rounds are scheduled for Thursday and Fourth rounds, informal "bermuda junction." will be held the following Monday. Coffee hours will mark the completion of the rush rounds Tuesday and bids will be distributed Wednesday.

According to Jane Shoemaker, newly appointed rush chairman, a problem is that the University would prefer that rush be completed within one week to avoid conflicts with classes and other scheduled activities. She proposed that rush week begin with registration Jan. 3. However the possibility of a Penn State bowl game would "make it too tight" for women to return by that time according to Susan Schwidt game would "make it too tight" for women to return by that time according to Susan Schmidt (7th-pre-law-Bethlehem). Also mentioned was the possibility of beginning rush week Jan. 7, to allow time for buying books and unpacking, but a straw vote on the matter confirmed that the rush schedule would begin Sunday.

A schedule for the number of parties for each round of cuts was discussed. The final decision was to have 22 parties, each 20 minutes long for the first sessions, 14 25-minute parties for the second sessions, and seven 45-minute parties for the third sessions. Three-hour bermuda junctions will constitute fourth sessions, while fifth sessions will be two coffee hours, each lasting 90 minutes.

Miss Shoemaker announced that a schedule has been arranged that would provide for three different party times composed of eight parties each. Each group of parties would be held in one residence hall area, and a free period would provide time for rushees to travel between areas. Miss Shoemaker believed that the plan 'will please the vast majority of sororities."

Afternoon coffee hours were proposed as an alternative to the present system of evening coffee hours. According to Miss Shoemaker, the main criticism of rush by the fall pledges was the overly sentimental ceremonies during the coffee hour sessions.

A system of two afternoon coffee hours with an hour after the second party before the rushees are required to sign preferential cards would require the sororities to rely roore on the personality of the members and less on emotion and would give the rushees time to think about their choices. Elleen Donovan (4th-secondary education-York) believed that afternoon coffee hours would present a "more honest impression" of the sorority members. However, one member believed that changing the time would not change the effect of the coffee hour sessions on the rushees. Miss Schmidt added that, while many of the fall rushees were older women, most winter rushees are freshmen and the sentimental ceremonies would have a greater appeal for them. A system of two afternoon coffee hours with would have a greater appeal for them.

Forget what you've heard about flashy halfbacks. Try to disregard offensive displays by those quarterbacks who can fire the ball to any one of five different receiver in a split second. Don't look

MCKEE

The pros call the area between the two opposing lines the "pit" because that's where the toughest fighting takes place. Penn State's premier "pit fighter", the guy who is probably the Lions' best blocker, is offensive guard Chuck Zapiec.

When Bob Campbell scored the two point conversion to win the Orange Bowl last January, it was Zapiec's block that led the way. He's been doing the same thing all year without credit from the fans or the press. But offensive linemen get used to living in obscurity, in a world where there are no statistics of any kind.

"We just have to take our pride from other things," Zapiec said. "Like when Charlie Pittman was picked as a pre-season All-American, we took pride in that.

"We know, and Charlie knows, that the backs can't do it without us. Two weeks ago, when three running backs gained more than 100 yards each, we took immense pride in that."

Zapiec is one of those rare ball players who can come along and fit into the starting lineup of an established team as a sophomore. Last year he stepped in and was one of the inexperienced links in a chain that included seniors like John Kulka and Dave Bradley.

This season, with the departure of a lot of last year's rugged blockers, Zapiec emerged as one of State's key linemen. He had the experience which others didn't.

"I've learned a lot this season," the 6-2, 223pounder said. "It's easy to learn when you start with nothing and I didn't know a whole lot last year."

"I can pick up a lot by watching films," Zapiec continued. "After two seasons, you learn a lot. I had trouble last year ZAPIEC with one-on-one blocking, but I put on 12 pounds this year and that helped too.' In a ground attack like State's the guards are among the most important men on every play. They not only block straight ahead, but must pull lead sweeps.

"Pulling and trapping are my strong points," Zapiec said. "That just came naturally to me last year. This year, since we haven't thrown a lot, I do a lot of that."

When State makes its third straight trek to Dixie for a post-season bowl game. Zapiec will be one of the most important figures on the team. No, he's not going to score the winning touchdown. But the guy who does will know that Chuck was in the game.

Beaver Stadium is a menacing hulk outside East Halls. Its grey frame rising out of the fog on a typical morning has seemed like an aircrast carrier to the average resident of McKean Hall. On stormy nights, some actually claim they have seen the stadium let loose with cannon fire.

For 18 members of the Penn State football team, including 12 starters, Beaver Stadium is not quite so frightening. In fact, the grey wood and metal stands are a welcome sight for them. These 18 are the seniors who will be running onto the green and white playing surface for their last home football game tomorrow. It is no wonder that they have a certain affinity for the place. In their three years of varsity football, they have left the field losers only once-losers-and that after a thriller of a game with UCLA in 1967.

Tomorrow the senior Lions should chalk up another win as they bow out of Beaver Stadium. They meet the University of Maryland at 1:30 p.m. on those grounds and are overwhelming favorites.

The Terps own a 2-6 record and have had trouble generating any sort of offense all season. Through the early part of the season, when the Terps gathered their Lion safety Neal Smith is now sixth among the alltime collegiate career interception leaders with 17 steals. Currently leading the nation with eight interceptions this season, Smith has a chance to move to second or third place by adding a few more steals. two wins, they relied on the strength of a good running attack and solid defense. Since then they have developed a bit of a passing attack but have not been consistent in anything they did.

Penn State assistant coach Jim Weaver has scouted the Terps the past few weeks and agrees. "Overall, Maryland has been inconsistent. They fumbled seven timesagainst Clemson and haven't really put together a good drive since the Duke game (their second game of the season and their last win)."

Maryland uses a conservative, balanced offense which depends on backs Al Thomas and Tom Miller to grind out the yardage and sophomore quarterback Jeff Shugars to throw dart passes to end Roland Merritt.

The Terp defense has several outstanding players, but 'There is a tendency, if you're not careful, to beat somebody badly just for the polls," last season's Coach of the Year said. "And that's not compatible to good sports-

Paterno recognizes his team's superiority to the Terps. "Win, certainly," he said, "but do it with charity towards those you beat. I think you can have a great football team without sacrificing your integrity."

The Lion coach, who turned down a lucrative job with the Pittsburgh Steelers last year to stay a college coach, emphasized his role as an educator. "I prize myself as an educator," Paterno said, "and there are lessons to be learned here just as there are to be learned from a Hemingway or Lord Byron. As a coach I'm here to fill a need. A lot of people want to play football. My job is to help them get the job done.

"My job is to help give them some kind of perspective and help make them better human beings instead of just teaching them to knock somebody on his back."

Paterno neglected to say that he has managed to put louether a pretty good football team, despite the fact that he was busy building character. They should have no trouble downing frustrated Maryland, but don't expect any lopsided score just for the sake of publicity.

Those 18 seniors will be on the field tomorrow trying to win the last one of a great series in that aircraft carrier called a stadium. Luckily for Maryland, they will be good sports about it.

A Horse Story: Dreams Die

By JIM SUBJACK Guest Sports Columnist

Did you ever have one of those days when nothing went right? Last Tuesday was one for me. I woke up with a splitting headache, walked into a closed door, couldn't get my car started, but worst of all, had my lifelong dreams of my future vocation shattered. I realized that I could never become a professional horseplayer.

Alas, the grim truth was realized at Laurel Race course in Laurel Md. I had visions of winning $200 in the daily double plus $300 in the ensuing races. But after eight races I had only eight losing tote tickets for my effort. I totaled the places where my horses finished, took this figure and divided it by the number of horses that ran and came out with .720. Penny Weichel should be so lucky in her picks. Then I realized I had just determined the percentage of horses that placed ABOVE mine. The life of a pauper flashed before my eyes.

however. My bad luck has been running like this since forever. Last year I had a sure winner on paper. I was convinced when I looked at the racing form at the appropriate spot for its ancestry. The names read Citation and Blue Ribbon. I knew Citation was one of the finest thoroughbreds of all time and a horse named Blue Ribbon must have had something going for it. Well, if I had read the form closely I'd have seen the asterisk. It was a footnote stating that the horse had received a "citation" for being the prettiest horse in the Chautauqua County (N.Y.) Fair and had won a "blue ribbon" at the annual Clyde, N.Y. horse show. Nice time for the printers of the racing form to do a funny. If I ever see that horse again it had better be on the back of a postage stamp.

Two years ago I had a horse that not only looked good on paper, but also looked good running. Coming into the last eighth mile he had what seemed to be an insurmountable lead. Then out of nowhere came a scruffy horse-which was a candidate for Alpo dog food if I ever saw one-that closed rapidly to win in a photo finish.

Then there was the horse I picked at a track in Canada. He was running at the head of the pack as they came into the final turn. All of a sudden he just died. I'd normally have written it off to experience, except that this horse didn't die out-he literally died during the race. Was someone trying to tell me something?

The epitome of bush occurred last summer, though. The horse I picked finished first. I was standing there calculating the money I would collect when the loudspeaker blared, "A foul claim has been lodged by the last place horse against the first place finisher. Please hold all parimutuel tickets." The minutes seemed like hours as the stewards examined the film of the race.

Then it happened. The loudspeaker proclaimed, "Due to an infraction occurring at the first turn, the first place finisher has been disqualified." Aw, come on, give me a break.

Probably the biggest factor of all though, is my collection of uncashed pari-mutuel tickets, which I'm proud to say is one of the most extensive in existence. With Tuesday's eight losers, I now have enough to pave a road from State College to Bellefonte and STILL have three left for use as confetti.

Thus my career as a professional horseplayer has ended. Now what did I do with that deck of yards to move into lifth spot on the NCAA all-tune career yardage list. Ohio State quarterback Rex Kern, back at the controls after sitting out the Wisconsin game last week, already owns the Ohio State career yardage record as a junior.

Ohio State, leading the nation in scoring with 47 points a game, has yielded only 7.8 points to Purdue's 25 per game. Phipps and associates are putting points on the board at a 37-point rate.

Religious People Let Us Unite

A segregated faith tends to shut its own truth in and other truth out. Its center of gravity is itself.

We need one another. Let us unite and supply that

So long as we remain segregated into many faiths we dony the very spirit of religion and deny ourselves its full benefit.

There has never been a time when there was greater need for religion to bring its full united strength to bear. Segregation is bad emotionally. It tends to cramp our we-feeling within the limits of fellow segregated sectarians rather than to include all religious people.

Segregation is bad intellectually. Through the ages, segregated faiths have demanded implicit — even blind — obedience. "Thou shalt!" and "Thou shalt not!" were not to be guestioned.

History condemns segregation which limits, blights and pits faith against faith. A faith, emboldened by its sense of certainty, has fought other faiths with even greater zeal than it has fought irreligion.

Sects split communities, nations and the world into self-centered groups who disrupt society and make it hard to work together. Sectarian preferences and prejudices spill over into politics, education, business, the employment office, medicine and other fields as manupulators appeal to prejudice and play one group against others.

By contrast: One Religion of Brotherhood would pool the Religious Experiences of all in the enjoyment of a common Religious Life of Service and in the search for greater Religious Truth. It is a Unity of Purpose — The Practice of Brotherhood.

The faiths have shown little inclination to merge. It became evident that if an inclusive religion were created in our day, individual One Religionsts would have to create it. Numerous local One Religion groups are needed. Such a grass roots movement is likely to be more vital, dynamic and meaningful to its members than one organized and controlled from above.

Lion Sports Legacy

When State's Soccer Team Was Invincible

By BOB DIXON

Collegian Sports Writer Tomorrow the Penn State Nittany Lions will march out onto the gridiron against the Maryland Terrapins and will no doubt win once again to raise their season's record to 8-0. A victory tomorrow would also give the Lions 19 consecutive wins over the last two years and a non-losing streak of 27 games, extending back to the fourth game of the 1967 season.

But even that streak of 27 games would fall far short of one that came to an end exactly 28 years ago tomorrow. It was a streak of 65 consecutive games without a loss and it was compiled over a 10-year span from 1932 to 1941.

Now you're going to say, "Oh no, you're wrong", that the Lion grid teams of those days were mediocre, and in fact they were, having compiled a 42-32-5 record in that 10-year span. But the record was not the football team but the Jeffreymen-the soccer squad to those of you under 30.

The Jeffreymen got their distinctive nickname from their coach, Bill Jef-frey, who led Lion soccer teams to a record of 154-24-29 in 25 seasons from 1927 to 1952. And right in the heart of that tenure was the finest streak of athletic accomplishment Penn State has ever know.

It all began on Nov. 5, 1932 when the Lion booters lost to Syracuse, 2-1. State won its next game, the final of the season, 2-0 over Army. Little could anyone suspect at that time that the victory would be the beginning of a streak that would continue for nine years until broken by that same Army team. 1-0 on Nov. 15, 1941.

The statistics of the streak are unbelievable. In the span of those 65

5. Forty-six times the Lion booters shut out their opponents and 12 times they limited the other team to a single goal. Only seven times did opponents score more than once against State.

Offensively the Lions were also formidable, scoring 10 or more goals in a game three times and scoring five times or more in another 20 games. In all. State rang up 268 goals during the streak while giving up just 32.

The longest win streak during the 10 seasons went from the end of the 1937 season to the next to last game in 1939 when the Lions won 17 in a row. But the Lion booters couldn't help but put together strings of victories, having compiled streaks of 12, 11, 11 and eight

Probably the best of the eight full seasons in the streak was 1935, when State went 7-0 and was unscored upon. the following year, thus running the string to 10 games in which State had not allowed a single score. Later, in the last half of 1937 and the beginning of 1938. State put together a similar string of nine consecutive games without giving up a goal.

While 1935 might have been the stingiest of the Lion years, there were other seasons at that time just as fine. In 1937 State compiled a record of 7-0-1, recorded seven shutouts and gave up just one goal. The following year the Lions were 8-0 with six shutouts and an average of nearly five goals scored a game.

Probably the toughest time the Jetfreymen had during the win-streak came midway through the 1936 season. After opening with three shutout victories. State lasted through two close ones, tying Syracuse 4-4 and Western the Orangemen were the most by any one team in one game against the Lions throughout the entire streak. As far as the tie with Western Maryland goes the Lions made amends for that by thrashing the upstarts 9-0, 12-0 and 3 0 the next three times the teams met.

On that fateful day at West Point in 1911, the streak finally came to an end. Three thousand Penn Staters turned out the following day to welcome the Jeffreymen and their coach back to State College, but it took the defeat to make the fans realize how good a team the booters were.

Not to take away from the purpose of this column, which is to point out the great Penn State soccer squads of days past, it would be regretful if the analogy between State fans of the 1930's and those of today was not prought out In the same way that the Jeffreymen lost, the Lion football team is now get-ting basically the same treatment. While the grid team is being continuously supported, merely because it is a football team, the fans are beginning to get disenchanted with girnes in which State wins by less than 30 points. It is the last there anyone would want, but perhaps a Lion loss would be the best medicine for shaking up the fans. Then they d know how the other half lives and would appreciate victory.

And so, there is a lesson for all Penn Staters. And for the current football team, let the past record of the Jeffreymen serve as an incentive. Maybe some day it can answer the question asked by The Daily Collegian in a headline following the end of the soccer squads unbeaten streak.
