Enemy Troops Hit Near Bu Prang

SAIGON — U.S. jets roared in through heavy clouds yesterday and pounded North Vietnamese troops massed near the Bu Prang Special Forces camp in an area where the South Vietnamese claimed a slaughter of enemy forces took place the day before.

The North Vietnamese opened up at dawn, firing 40 mortar rounds on the hilltop camp in the central highlands 10 miles north of Saigon. Then they fired artillery from a sanctuary in nearby Cambodia, where their guns had come under U.S. artillery fire and air attacks for two days.

Ignoring the fire from Cambodia, U.S. fighter-bomber attacks were concentrated on a ridge-line, scarred by bombs and napalm, little more than a mile east of Bu Prang. It is from this direction that most of the enemy pressure has come on Bu Prang this week.

U.S., Soviets Begin Arms Race Talks

HELSINKI, Finland — The United States and the Soviet Union held their first down-to-business session yesterday on how they can stop the nuclear arms race, but gave no inkling about the results.

A second working meeting was scheduled for Thursday, indicating that the strategic arms limitation talks, dubbed SALT, will be held in alternate days in Helsinki.

The U.S. and Soviet negotiators were all smiles in public and vied with each other in gestures of cordiality. But their talks were held under tight security precautions and the members of the delegations refused to say anything about the proceedings.

The day was climaxed by a gala reception at which Finnish President Urho Kekkonen sipped champagne and chatted amiably with Gerard Smith and Vladimir Semenov, the chief U.S. and Soviet delegates.

U.S. Will Reply to Libyan Demands

WASHINGTON — The United States will deliver its reply this week to Libyan demands that it pack up and get out of the giant Wheelock Air Force Base.

Ambassador Joseph Palmer will inform the new revolutionary regime in Tripoli that the United States is ready to start negotiations on the future of the $100-million, 2,100-acre base.

Palmer was called home for consultations after the new pro-Arab regime served notice on Oct. 30 that the current base agreement will be terminated when it runs out at the end of 1970.

The U.S. ambassador is now en route back to his post with the Nixon administration's reply.

A spokesman at the base said, meanwhile, that no official word had been received there on a reported Libyan ban on all U.S. planes, except for supply planes.

Col. Adam Hawwaz, Libyan defense minister, was quoted as telling the Egyptian newspaper Al Ahram on Monday that force may be used to enforce the ban.

The Nation

Joseph Kennedy Dies in Hyannis Port

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. — Joseph P. Kennedy, who amassed one of America's biggest fortunes, served as ambassador to Britain and then stepped aside to let his sons take the limelight, died yesterday at 81.

Kennedy was patriarch of a glamorous, star-crossed clan that included the 35th president of the United States and two U.S. senators. At his bedside in his seaside family compound on Cape Cod were his widow, Rose and sole surviving son, Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, D-Mass.

Also present were Edward's wife Joan, daughters Eunice Shriver, Jean Smith and Patricia Lawford, former daughter-in-law Jacqueline Onassis and son-in-law Sargent Shriver, U.S. ambassador to France.

Unlike four of his nine children, the elder Kennedy died quietly. He had been partly paralyzed since suffering a stroke in 1961. He had a mild heart attack on Saturday and had been reported growing progressively weaker. He then slipped into a coma.

Paperwork Increases at Draft Boards

Paperwork is piling up at draft boards in some of the nation's large cities, due largely to an increase of conscientious objector applications, requests for hardship deferments, and staff shortages a survey shows.

"People are a lot more aware of their rights and they're taking advantage of them," said Maj. William Sangemino, head of the Manpower and Training office of New York City Selective Service.

In an Associated Press survey of 10 areas in the country, six reported paperwork increasing. They were New York, Chicago, Detroit, Denver, Baltimore and Los Angeles.

Heavy deferment requests and appeals were cited by a spokesman for Los Angeles County draft boards, which are opening their doors at 10 a.m. instead of 8 a.m., providing two hours to handle a growing amount of paperwork.

The State

Transit Bill Back in House Committee

HARRISBURG — The long-awaited legislation to merge the state's transit activities into one massive Department of Transportation is back in a House committee for some minor surgery.

The House member who asked the bill be put there Monday, Rep. William Renwick, D-Elk, says he hopes it dies in committee because he says House members who amended it "have really fouled this thing up."

He pointed out that the bill, originally drafted by the Shaffer administration and passed early this year by the Senate, now has a handful of transportation industry associations opposing it.

But the bill's supporters in the House, Senate and in the governor's office say the measure will be passed by the end of the year and it will include several provisions some special interest groups consider onerous.

City Officials Urge Added Tax Power

HARRISBURG — Two dozen Pennsylvania mayors and city officials came to the state capitol yesterday to remind lawmakers of a promise they made a year ago to provide some additional taxing powers for municipalities.

The contingent was led by retiring Pittsburgh Mayor Joseph M. Barr who was making what was perhaps his last official visit to Harrisburg.

Also at the meeting with the Senate Local Government Committee but not with Barr was Pittsburgh Councilman Peter F. Flaherty, the maverick Democrat who will succeed the long-time Democratic organization leader in January.

The original Pennsylvania League of Cities, would have authorized cities and other municipalities to double their occupational privilege taxes and personal income taxes, and raise real estate taxes by five mills.

Heart Recipient, Fight Promoter Dies

PITTSBURGH — Ben Anolik, a former boxing promoter and the world's third longest-living heart transplant patient, died yesterday from the drugs that kept his body from rejecting its new heart. He was 47.

A spokesman for Presbyterian-University Hospital, said death was not "totally unexpected" either for Anolik or the hospital staff. He declined to elaborate.

Anolik, who threw a party in the hospital on the first anniversary of the transplant, received the heart of John Skultety, a 22-year-old insurance salesman from Indiana County, Pa., who was killed in a traffic accident. The operation Aug. 31, 1968, was a major day in heart transplant history with two others taking place in Houston, Tex., and Stanford, Calif.

Discussions Office To Uphold Majority Views

Walker Renews Office Stand

By ROB McHUGH
Collegian Staff Writer

University President Eric A. Walker has reaffirmed his position that the director of the Office for Student Discussions should be an advocate of the majority views.

After campus disturbances last Winter and Spring Terms, labor mediator Theodore W. Kheel was invited here in April to explore methods of improving communications within the University. At that time he recommended that an Office for Student Discussions be established to serve as a communication agent between students, faculty and administration. Walker set up the office soon afterward.

A statement made by Walker in October said: "The head of the office was not expected to be a mediator, an ambassador or a conciliator. His job was to facilitate discussion among all groups of students and learn what the majority student opinion was."

Majority Opinion 'Important'

The statement also said: "Now I believe it's important to know how the majority feels about any issue because this is a prime factor in helping us make decisions. Opinions of groups other than the majority must also be examined, but in the final analysis by its very nature, the majority opinion has to be given the most weight."

Walker met Nov. 3 with representatives of a special committee set up by Walker to suggest candidates for a permanent director of the office. Hugh Urban, associate professor of human development and Hal Sudborough, president of the Graduate Student Association, met with Walker to discuss changes proposed by the committee.

The committee agreed Oct. 26 to recommend to Walker that the office be renamed the Office for Student Inclusion. Members argued that the name change would better fit the functions of the office as defined by the committee.

To Insure Opinions Known

At an Oct. 12 meeting, the committee agreed that the job of the director should not be to obtain a consensus of student opinion for presentation to those making University decisions, but to insure the presentation of the range of student opinions. The committee also agreed to recommend that the director have access to all relevant committees within the University.

Walker's restatement of his position came in a letter written to Urban following the meeting. All members of the committee received a copy of the letter.

In the letter, Walker said that he felt it is possible to write a description of the issues that would concern the director, a statement of what the officer would do, how he would do it and what his responsibilities would be.

Decision May Dismiss Minority

Walker wrote: "I also pointed out to you that such an officer might indeed have the confidence of all people involved just before the issue is decided, but obviously, when an issue is decided, it will be decided, hopefully, on the basis of majority opinion and therefore will go against the wishes of those holding the minority opinion. This is as it should be. But then how does this officer explain his failure to carry the argument, to any minority that has been turned down."

"In short, it seems to me that the job of this person, in the end, comes around to being exactly what Mr. Kheel had explained in his concept of the job. Eventually, the officer has to convince all of the students that the decision reached was a just one, one supported by the largest number, and one that must be accepted even if it goes against their own personal desires. As is said, in a democracy the majority wins and therefore, some must lose."

Reviewing the functions of the director as suggested by Kheel, Walker said, "The man could find a position which would be supported by the majority of students and he could, by holding discussions, make sure that all of the students understood the majority position and were willing to go along with the majority opinion, even if they did not individually agree with it. This, as he (Kheel) pointed out, is the very essence of the democratic process."

Members Receive Letter

Members of the committee also received copies of a letter from University Senate Chairman Arthur O. Lewis. Urban and Sudborough met with Lewis on Oct. 30.

Lewis said he could "find no difficulty" regarding the name change for the office. "I'm not sure that either name is the right name, but if one name makes students and others happier than the other, I certainly would not object."

Asked To Define 'Congressional Status'

Court To Hear Petition

By LARRY REIBSTEIN
Collegian Staff Writer

The Undergraduate Student Government Supreme Court was asked yesterday to define "final congressional status" and after doing so, rule on the Joe Myers' case.

The request for a hearing, submitted by Bob Shaffer, Mens Residence Council President and Dave Schmitt, East Halls Congressman, states "the present controversy exists due to lack of such a definition which leaves the area of impeachment and elections grievance in question."

Final congressional status is defined in the petition as when a person becomes a congressman with all rights and privileges.

The court will hear the petition Tuesday.

Myers Disqualified

The Joe Myers' case began two weeks ago when the Court ruled that Myers, who placed second in a eight-seat race for town representation, had disqualified himself by accepting a fraternity bid around the time of his certification.

In its decision, the Court said that an elected congressman must "remain affiliated with his respective area up to the time of, as well as after certification."

A majority of the congressmen in the USG meeting two days later maintained that the Court had overstepped its area of jurisdiction by ruling on a certified congressman.

Only Congress can initiate action against one of its members.

The court, however, said that Myers' certification was unconstitutional because of his change of affiliation and thus he was never a congressman.

The petition wants the Court to clear up this confusion surrounding the question of just when a person is a congressman. At present, the petition states, no clear statement of final congressional status in the constitution, by-laws or elections codes exist.

This was one of the major points of controversy in the Myers debates. Some congressmen contended that a person is a congressman when he is sworn in; others say when he is certified by the election commission.

Election Grievances

There is also the question of election grievances. The Supreme Court rules on any grievances that are brought before it directly after the elections. But does the Court have the jurisdiction to rule on an election grievance after the congressman has been sworn in as a duly elected congressman?

Shaffer said that if the Court defines final congressional status in favor of Myers, he would hope the Court would establish a precedent by rehearing a case when new evidence is presented.

Defining final congressional status in favor of Myers would mean declaring him as a congressman at the time of his accepting the fraternity bid.

If the Court ruled that he was a candidate, Myers case would end as the jurisdiction of the court includes ruling on election grievances.

Chief Justice Won't Comment

Chief Justice Harry Hill would not comment on the case. He explained, however, that the Court did not have to hear the case if it did not warrant attention.

Shaffer said that he was encouraged that the Court decided to hear the petition. "At least they will hear a congressional viewpoint."

Shaffer said he "wouldn't dare venture an opinion" as to the outcome of the case.

Another development which may result from the case, Shaffer said, is a lesser court system in addition to the Supreme Court. Myers had no other court in which to appeal.

USG President Ted Thompson said of the petition, "No one should be allowed to ask for an advisory opinion from the Court. The Court is a final body."

"To ask The Court for an advisory opinion almost informs a person how the Court will decide. The case is almost decided before it is tried."

In reply, Shaffer said the Court is being asked to put down a constitutional interpretation. He said that this is a case where the Congress has overlooked a situation and here is a need for an interpretation.

"We are asking for something that will be law," Shaffer said.

White Solidarity' Rally Today; Meeting Planned With Walker

By MARGE COHEN
Collegian Feature Editor

At 1 p.m. today members of the University community will gather in front of Old Main in a meeting of "white solidarity" in support of the Black Student Union.

Members of BSU will address the group while a delegation of 14 people, will representing seven student organizations and unaffiliated students, "probably" will attempt to arrange a meeting with University President Eric A. Walker, according to BSU Political Chairman Vince Benson.

Organizations represented will be the New University Conference through Scott Williams, instructor in mathematics, Coalition for Peace, Students for a Democratic Society, New Democratic Coalition, Jazz Club, Women's Liberation Front and the White Liberation Front.

White Students in Delegation

An equal number of unaffiliated white students will also be included in the delegation, Benson said.

Williams, however, was the only named delegate known by the Daily Collegian last night.

Meanwhile, Walker has agreed to a meeting between administrators and student representatives to be held at 8:30 a.m. tomorrow in 211 Orville J. Keller Center.

In a letter addressed to Undergraduate Student Government President Ted Thompson and Organization of Student Government Associations President Ron Batchelor, Walker wrote:

"I will meet with you and the other people mentioned in your letter of Nov. 17 at 8:30 a.m. Thursday, Nov. 20, 1969, in Room 211 of the Keller Building. I hope this is a satisfactory time and place."

"There will be with me those people mentioned in your letter with the exception that Richard E. Grubb will be there in the place of Dr. Rackley."

Charges 'Misrepresentation'

ROTC Head May Not Speak

By STEVE SOLOMON
Collegian Staff Writer

The commanding officer of the Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps program at the University said he might not appear at a panel discussion of ROTC tonight because of "misrepresentation" of the purpose of the discussion.

Colonel Elwood Wagner, professor of aerospace studies, said that he and Col. Arthur A. Gottlieb, commander of Army ROTC, had not been told that the proceedings would be tape recorded and transcribed and then included in a report by the Undergraduate Student Government which would either support or reject the ROTC program at the University.

"The panel discussion was not represented that way, to us," Wagner said. "We were asked to come to the meeting to answer questions from students, and that is all."

No Prior Knowledge

"I'm all for student-faculty communications," he continued. "But I had no knowledge whatsoever that this was to be a part of USG procedures. I didn't know that I was becoming part of the resolution process."

Wagner declined to say if he would attend tonight's discussion, indicating only that he would "sleep on it."

USG Vice President Aron Arbitter said last night that the discussion, which is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. in the Hetzel Union Building Ballroom, would not be cancelled.

Worked with Gottlieb

Arbitter said that he had worked with Gottlieb on the format of the program and that the Colonel was aware of USG's intention to use the discussion as testimony in formulating a resolution on ROTC.

"Col. Gottlieb was informed that this would be used for testimony and he was also told that the tape recorder would be used," Arbitter said. "I felt that if any one person was to take notes on the proceedings, he might make a mistake and USG would be accused of bias."

"It was explained to him that USG needed this testimony in order to write up an unbiased, and impartial resolution which would also include recommendations," he continued.

Unbiased and Impartial

Wagner said that he had spoken to Gottlieb, who, he said, had no knowledge of the resolution. Gottlieb was not available for comment last night.

Arbitter said that other campus groups in the past—such as the University Senate—had passed resolutions dealing with ROTC, and that it was time for USG to do the same.

"Being a legitimate organization," Arbitter said, "we should also consider ROTC on this campus. I thought that the resolution would be beneficial as a recommendation from a legitimate student government, and that the recommendation might suggest something that could help the ROTC to substantiate itself here."

Astronauts Combat 'Nuisances' While Awaiting Moon Landing

SPACE CENTER, Houston (AP) — With their little mooncraft Intrepid ready for the wild ride to the lunar surface, the Apollo 12 explorers took inventory of some nagging nuisances yesterday — a stuffy head, an open sore and a pesky solar storm.

Command Pilot Charles Conrad Jr. awoke to complain about a weeping sore on his chest caused by a reaction to heart-rate sensors and the jelly used to apply them.

Intrepid pilot Alan L. Bean awoke early to complain about a stuffy head cold.

Gordon Not Complaining

The only one not complaining was Richard F. Gordon, pilot of the mothership Yankee Clipper, who will not walk on the moon.

Mission Control told the astronauts when they all awakened about 4:20 p.m. EST that there was a Class II flare on the surface of the sun, but that there was no appreciable radiation coming from the astronauts' way.

Mission Control said it was keeping an eye on the solar flare aided by satellites that checked radiation.

'Good Morning'

When they were awakened, Capsule Communicator Don Lind boomed up mothership Yankee Clipper who will not gentlemen! Today's the big day! Hit the deck!

They had retired at 8:30 a.m. for a scheduled 8½-hour sleep period.

Mission Control consulted the flight surgeons and told him he could take decongestant pills every eight hours.

Many astronauts have experienced some stiffness because of the drying action on nasal membranes of the pure oxygen environment. It is a common reaction among fliers who breathe pure oxygen for long periods of time.

At first controllers identified the flare as one that blew away from the sun's surface Nov. 2, but later Mission Control described it as a new flare. Based on information in hand, controller said, "We would not expect it to be a problem."

The sun is constantly radiating high energy particles out into space. The solar wind is a charged gas of such particles blowing constantly through the solar system. Occasionally the sun erupts in blister-like flares that send heavy concentrations of particles into space.

Half for You, Half for...

THE ASSOCIATED PRESS reported yesterday that Penn State is expected to receive about $360,000 in tax-free money from the Orange Bowl.

In addition, it will receive close to $200,000 from its nationally televised game with North Carolina State in two weeks.

That adds up to almost $600,000.

And even though athletic department officials were reluctant to speak on the matter, that's enough money to run anyone's athletic program—especially considering that the above dollar figure doesn't include gate receipts and radio broadcast monies.

CONSIDER THE money the University will get from the Orange Bowl as an example. Take $100,000 off the top for team expenses for the trip; split the remaining $260,000 in half, and return half the money to the athletic department for its programs and give the other half to a scholarship program for the disadvantaged.

Now, on top of the thousands of other dollars which pour into the Health and Phys. Ed. College's coffers each year, they have $130,000 from the Orange Bowl.

And disadvantaged students from across the state would have $130,000 more to put them through college.

It's a simple case. The University, not Ernie McCoy's athletic department, will receive the money from the bowl game. And so long as untagged money is coming into the University in such a large amount, we think it is only reasonable for the University to give some of that money to the disadvantaged.

The athletic department has boasted frequently about its tremendous IM program, the fact that the University has more tennis courts than any other school in the nation and the one outdoor and four indoor pools.

These facilities and programs undoubtedly serve the students. But again, we wonder about the University's priorities.

Tennis courts are fine; admission of disadvantaged students is better.

IF UNIVERSITY President Eric A. Walker can arrange to divert some of the Orange Bowl receipts to this task, he will be showing the University community and the state his real concern for the disadvantaged.

"Man, that's really telling it like it is . . . !"

The Uncle Dicky Show

By MARC KLEIN
Collegian Assistant City Editor

Hi boys and girls. This is Uncle Dicky and I've got a secret. Yes, you can play the same game with me that the American people have played with three different presidents.

Now I'll give you a hint. The secret concerns a place where our boys are fighting for freedom of the oppressed.

No, it's not a college campus. No, it's not a ghetto. It's a small country far from our homeland. Korea? No. It's not Laos, either. It's Vietnam. Before I tell you my secret I want to tell you a story about the ruthless enemy in Vietnam.

Once upon a time some 15 years ago these evil Communists tried to take over the poor, but honest, peace loving people of South Vietnam. But before they could succeed, the Americans came to the rescue, spurred on by our late peace-loving president, Dwight D. Eisenhower.

We can't leave Vietnam now or the ruthless enemy will take over South Vietnam and destroy the honest democracy that almost 40,000 Americans have died to establish.

We won't come back until it's over there. We shall fight on the beaches, we shall fight on the landing grounds, we shall fight in the fields and in the streets, we shall fight in the hills; we shall never surrender.

Anyway, we promised South Vietnam that we would stay. We couldn't break a promise. We never break promises or lie. We are ready to bargain for peace, but the North Vietnamese are an obstinate people. All we ask is that we don't look like the loser and that equality and freedom be preserved in Vietnam.

But seeing that our attempts for peace have failed, Uncle Dicky drew up his own doctrine. I was doing more than just playing golf in California this summer.

Now I'll tell you the secret. First move up close to the television. Look around and make sure no evil Communists are watching or listening.

Well, here it is. I have a timetable for withdrawing our troops from Vietnam. No don't look at your watches. Don't look at your calendars either. It's a secret timetable.

I can't tell you about it now because if the enemy found out they might get even more obstinate at the peace talks and refuse to talk to us even about the shape of the bargaining table.

Also, if the brave South Vietnamese soldiers do not learn how to fight fast enough and if the attacks increase from North Vietnam, I might have to change the timetable. So instead of making promises and then being forced to break them, I'll keep the timetable secret. You'll just have to take my word. When has Uncle Dicky ever lied to you?

This, of course, is not the easiest course of action to take in Vietnam. But the world will respect us and we will respect ourselves. Boys and girls, next time you pledge allegiance to the flag you will be able to hold your head up high knowing America is doing right because Uncle Dicky told you so.

Some of you, I've noticed, have been protesting my policy on Vietnam. Protest is a right in the free world, but I want it stopped. Let's show those Communists you are all behind Uncle Dicky. The vocal minority will not sway me no matter how big the minority gets or how loud it vocalizes. There is a silent majority out there somewhere that supports me. As long as they are silent, I know I'm doing what they want.

Thank you boys and girls. You may now return to your silent prayers for Uncle Dicky's war.

KLEIN

Effective Communication Link

TO THE EDITOR: It has been brought to our attention that a very serious decision is facing the student population in the selection of the new Director of the Office of Student Inclusion, formerly the Office of Student Discussion. Although a committee has been established for the purpose of selecting an appropriate director, it seems important that all of the student body should voice its opinion in this matter so that the committee is representative of the views of all concerned students.

We feel that the importance of the Office of Student Inclusion should not be underestimated, as we see that it could function as a very effective communication link between the students and the administration of the University. This communication link is essential in retaining, or regaining, harmony among all segments of the academic community. However, the office can only be as effective as is its director, and therefore students should be encouraged to voice their support of a responsible candidate for this position. It is our hope that the new director will be selected on the basis of his understanding of student interests and of his ability to present these interests to the administration so that student views can at last be incorporated into the workings of the University.

Students often complain that they have no chance to speak in the decisions directly concerning them, and this problem will continue to exist if this opportunity to select a new director is by-passed. We encourage students to write letters to Ted Thompson, or to other members of the committee, supporting their candidates for this position.

TO THE EDITOR: During the past decade we have seen the rise of the New Left—a movement, composed largely of students, dedicated to the purpose of attacking hypocrisy in the national power structure. In their crusade for truth, we observe some interesting facts:

—Anti-war "pacifists" have bombed the RCA, General Motors, and Chase Manhattan Bank buildings in New York.
—At this university we have heard the New Left speak out against a faculty club to be built with private funds, on the grounds that the money could be better spent to help disadvantaged students. Yet nothing was heard about the proposed addition to the HUB, to be built with public funds.

—We have heard much rhetoric about University policy on the admission of the disadvantaged to the University. Whenever the Administration publicizes its difficulties in obtaining funds to support these potential students, it meets with bitter criticism. How many students do you see in the HUB taking up collections to serve this cause? Or is the money better spent on printing the Water Tunnel?

—Several weeks ago a certain member of the faculty attacked the Angel Flight, claiming it to be evil in part because it supports that evil merchant of death, the U.S. "war machine." How many orphans have she or her radical counterparts supported in Vietnam? How many hospitalized children have they cheered?

It is time for students to examine the motives and actions of the New Left. In doing so they will find hypocrisy—the very target of their tirades, in the broadest sense. They will find insincerity, illogical reasoning, and distortion of the truth. If responsible students really want to achieve worthwhile social goals, then they should reject the radical Left, before it destroys society.

Finest Possible Tribute

TO THE EDITOR: First, let us congratulate Joe Paterno and his team for a magnificent season. In addition to forging a superior record they have served as examples of sportsmanship and fair play to all of us.

There is another area where the team proved to be in the vanguard. In few other organizations at Penn State do blacks play such a significant role as they do in the football program. The undefeated record is eloquent testimony to the results of racial harmony and cooperation in pursuit of the mutual goals of the group.

It is hoped that this participation by blacks will continue and be extended to the areas of coaching and administration in our entire athletic program. It goes without saying that Penn State as a whole should strive to emulate the football team and the athletic department in this regard.

There is another area where the football program could serve as an example in the academic community and in the state. Rightly or wrongly, the primary loyalty of millions of Pennsylvanians to Penn State is the result of the successful football program. Joe Paterno has become a celebrity throughout the state. His words carry weight far beyond the campus boundaries. He has succeeded in creating an image of Penn State football which stresses the values of sportsmanship and enjoyment before victory.

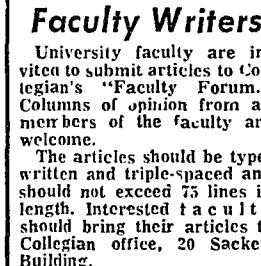

He and his players, more than any other people on the Penn State campus, could influence the citizens of Pennsylvania and our legislature by acting as examples in lending support to the University's program to enlarge the enrollment of blacks.

Last year the money the team received for participating in the Orange Bowl went to enlarge Beaver Stadium. Many felt this was further evidence of the misplaced priorities at Penn State. We propose that this year's Orange Bowl money be given by the Athletic Department for the use of disadvantaged students in pursuing their education.

We realize that the question could be raised, "why should the Athletic Department be expected to shoulder a burden that rightly belongs on the university administration and the legislature?" One answer is that the sad reality seems to be that the University administration, and to a larger degree the legislature, have abdicated their responsibility to correct the injustice of centuries lies with all of us. The citizens of Pennsylvania through their taxes help to ensure that we have an athletic program. For years the portion of those taxes contributed by blacks has gone almost exclusively to whites. We ask the Athletic Department to take their present opportunity to partially right the balance.

We feel that in light of the racial disharmony in evidence on athletic teams across the country, a contribution of the Orange Bowl money to a fund for disadvantaged students would be the finest possible tribute to a great coach and an outstanding team. We urge Coach Paterno, the players, and the Athletic Department to once again show the way to the rest of the Penn State community.

'Air of an Orphanage'

By BILL MOHAN
Collegian Columnist

The thing I'm worried about, not worried about, but I can see how boredom is progressively becoming the major part of my life. Every day at least a couple hours are spent fumbling and shuffling pleasantries, hoping I won't meet certain people to whom I will have to say certain things. The so-called compelling interests of students and social change, their naive jargon and behavior, their problems and neuroses, combine to give this campus the air of an orphanage.

MOHAN

The old, traditional notions of balling and having fun are again being considered useless and immoral. But really, libidinous activities are beyond the reach of most movement freaks. They never learned to have a good time. They couldn't get into ordinary smoking and cursing so now they decay it.

Since the most dissatisfied people are always the loudest, they come to control the organs through which they can scream at society. This has never been more clearly illustrated than on this campus. Child liberals write columns about the ravages of war. Yes, ROCK-HARD sophomore girls take up time, and space in a widely read college newspaper, with ideas that were invalid in English III.

Sad Day for Football

TO THE EDITOR: All during the last two years I've been hearing the line about what guts and character this Penn State football team had. I was very proud of the way they won in the Orange Bowl last season and the Syracuse game this year. So despite the fact they were voted in the middle of the Top 10 by sportswriters and coaches, I continued to proclaim, "We're number one."

This term I read (in the Philadelphia Inquirer and by the players' own admission) that this team was going to finally show the skeptics that they really were great by trouncing the highly rated Southwest Conference champion (either Texas or Arkansas). So what does this "great" team do? Elect to have "fun" in Miami rather than prove that they really are number one (or closer to it than they'd been voted in the polls all season.)

It is indeed a sad day for Penn State football.

Unanswered Questions: Penn State—1, 2, or 3?

By DON MCKEE
Collegian Sports Editor

Penn State rose to fourth place in the Associated Press football rankings yesterday, a nice gesture on the part of the voters, but only a gesture compared to what could have happened.

When the Nittany Lions decided to return to the Orange Bowl, rather than accept a bid to the Cotton Bowl, they gave up any chance at higher national ranking or the mythical national championship. For two years Penn State people have been saying that they would welcome a chance at a team ranked above the Lions, just to prove that Eastern football could compete with the rest of the nation.

A trip to the Cotton Bowl would have provided that chance, as this year's Southwest Conference champion will undoubtedly be ranked higher than State, and will also be an undefeated team. A victory over Texas or Arkansas would have been undeniable proof that Penn State wasn't indulging in hollow boasting when it said that the Lions could play on the same field as any other team. That is still true—but now no one anywhere else in the country will believe it.

"I'm kind of disappointed myself," one senior member of the team said yesterday. "I wanted the shot at Texas. Now we're playing Missouri, who's as tough as Texas, but doesn't have the ranking or the prestige."

That could be the crux of the matter—State stands to gain nothing from a win over the Tigers, since they are ranked below the Lions in the polls. State has everything to lose and nothing to gain. And that may take a bit off the team's effort. It certainly takes something away from a victory.

The public feeling now is that State is scared of Texas or Arkansas—hardly fair to the players, but understandable enough from the public's point of view. State had the chance to play for a higher ranking and didn't take it. And the possibility (however small) of a Michigan upset of Ohio State, could have made a Penn State-Texas game the national championship battle which everyone wants.

"We wouldn't be running away from Texas," another player said after the Maryland game. "It's just that we'd have no chance for No. 1 so why go to Dallas? Most of the guys feel that if we can't be No. 1, why not go to a better place? Why play for No. 2?"

A third player agreed with those sentiments, saying, "If we'd had any chance to play Ohio State, of course we'd have jumped at it. But we were No. 2 last year and it wouldn't mean a lot."

The players also brought up the excellent treatment received at the Orange Bowl last year, with its banquets and pagentry that is practically the equal of the Rose Bowl.

"We were told that a game with Texas in Dallas is just like an away game," one player said. "It's not like a bowl trip—they give everything to Texas and nothing to the other team. And when you play in the Orange Bowl you know everyone's watching you since it's at night."

"But the main reason for choosing Miami was just that we didn't have a chance for No. 1 by going to the Cotton Bowl."

That sums up the feeling of the team members who voted for Miami, with its perfect weather and beautiful ocean, rather than a possibly rainy Dallas with nothing but a reputation for having killed a president.

Since a bowl trip is a team's reward for a good season, the players should have the choice of what game to play in. But this year's bowl choice leaves a lot of unanswered questions. Can Penn State compete with the very best teams in college football? Even with its greatest team in history, Penn State will never know.

Ohio State Aims at National Title

Lions Rise to 4th in Poll

By The Associated Press

Ohio State goes against Michigan at Ann Arbor Saturday with a chance of becoming the sixth team in modern history to win successive national college football championships.

No team ever has won the title three times in a row but the Buckeyes, with a great junior squad headed by quarterback Red Kern, aim at continuing their dynasty at least through 1970.

An impressive triumph over Michigan would make the Buckeyes a heavy favorite in the decisive year-end poll of The Associated Press. A loss probably would knock them out of the picture and elevate either Texas or Arkansas to the No. 1 spot.

This would probably turn the Texas-Arkansas game at Fayetteville, Ark., Dec. 6 into the national championship game.

The Buckeyes continued to dominate the AP's weekly poll Tuesday with 31 of 39 first place votes from a panel of sports writers and broadcasters for a total of 736 points. Points are based on the electors' placings, with 20 for first, 18 second, 16 third, etc.

The last team to win two clear-cut national crowns in a row was Alabama, coached by Paul "Bear" Bryant, in 1961-65.

Previous teams to repeat were Minnesota 1940-41, Army 1944-45, Notre Dame 1946-47 and Oklahoma 1955-56.

The Buckeyes solidified the top spot by crushing Purdue last week, 42-14, the team that they knocked out of the No. 1 position a year ago.

Unbeaten Texas held onto the No. 2 rung with a smashing, 69-7, triumph over Texas Christian and Arkansas, the Longhorns' Southwest Conference rival leaped over Tennessee to third place by trouncing Southern Methodist, 28-15.

Tennessee, which had been cycling a major bowl bid, fell from third to ninth after suffering a 38-0 defeat at the hands of Mississippi.

Penn State, headed for an Orange Bowl date against Missouri, took fourth place, followed in order by Southern California, No. 5; UCLA, No. 6; Missouri, No. 7; Notre Dame, No. 8; Tennessee No. 9 and Louisiana State, No. 10.

Notre Dame, breaking a 45-year tradition, is going to the Cotton Bowl to face the Texas-Arkansas survivor. The Southern Cal-UCLA winner this week qualifies for the Rose Bowl against the undecided Big 10 representative. Mississippi, 13th in the poll, grabbed the Sugar Bowl spot against the losing side of the Texas-Arkansas debate.

Harriers Finish 3rd in IC4As; Fredericks Leads Team Effort

Penn State's cross country team set out Monday to prove that it was the best State has seen in years and the team did it. The Lion harriers finished third in the IC4A championships held in New York City, the highest finish for Penn State since 1961.

The most amazing thing about the finish in the 22-team field was the fact that most of the runners are underclassmen. Sophomore Greg Fredericks paced the Lions with a ninth place finish and Junior Ralph Kissel place 33rd in the 159-man field.

They were followed by soph Matt Chadwick at 38th, senior Jim Dixon at 44th and soph Jerry Henderson at 45th. As expected, Villanova won the event easily for the fourth straight year, accumulating 60 points. Harvard was second with 133 points and Penn State was a solid third with 154.

Penn State may be able to do something about that Villanova domination in the future. Although the freshmen also finished third, their performance was typified by some great individual races.

Jim Allahan came from the 50th position midway in the race to take second place and Dan Stupinski finished in the third position in the 137-man frosh field. Bruce McLanahan finished in the 20th position for the young Lions. William and Mary won the frosh meet with 76 points and Penn edged the Lions 110-111 for second place.

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP) — West Virginia will meet South Carolina in the Peach Bowl here Dec. 30, which makes it look like 10th ranked Louisiana State will sit out the bowl season.

LSU, which lost a Cotton Bowl berth when Notre Dame decided to go bowling for the first time since 1925, had been considered as a possibility for the Peach. The Tigers beat Florida State 31-17 in the first Peach Bowl last year.

Bloodmobile Awaits Donors On Ground Floor of HUB

The Daily Collegian gave blood at the Bloodmobile in the Hetzel Union Building, and lived to tell the tale.

The donor walks into the HUB of his own volition and answers a few questions for the ladies sitting behind a table. He is then herded to the next station where his temperature is taken, and he is rewarded for being good with a glass of orange juice. Again a series of questions are presented, these on the medical history of the donor, and the last chance to lie one's way out of donating is gone.

A bag of anti-coagulant is presented to the donor and he is shipped into the next room to await his turn on the beds. As each moment goes by, tension builds, causing the blood to flow faster.

The nurse comes over, and looks straight at her next customer and asks sweetly, "Are you next?" An impulse to deny the fact that one is even present in the room must be fought back, and there is no opportunity to be noble and let someone else go ahead, so the big minute has arrived.

It actually takes about five minutes to extract a pint of blood. Ten or fifteen minutes later, strength returns to the body, but leaves quickly when a volunteer informs the donor that there is free food which may be consumed until one again feels revived.

For a normal male it usually takes a half dozen glazed doughnuts, three cups of coffee and a glass of orange juice to become rejuvenated.

Giving blood almost turns out to be fun; and the blood-drip pin the Red Cross gives out makes a great conversation piece. Prospective donors may visit the Bloodmobile from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. today on the ground floor of the HUB.

Regarding a proposal that the director have access to all committees, "As I understand it, what you really are proposing is that the director should have access to all committees throughout the University and I agree that this is a good start. Specifically, I can find no reason to deny access to any committee of the Senate, but the access should be in accordance with fixed procedures."

Outsider Might Damage Work
Lewis explained that the director would be required to request to see the committee beforehand, because "there are occasions on which having any outsider in the committee might damage the work of the committee." He added that the denial of any request would be explained in writing.

Lewis said, "Finally, I should like to remind your committee that whoever this director may be, he cannot represent all student points of view, but he will have to try. It would appear to me that there would be occasions when he would come to a committee and present two, three, four, or more opposing views, indicating each one is representative of certain segments of the student population. Only in this way can he serve effectively. Publicity about what he gets from committees should be his responsibility and not that of the committee."
